Over nearly the whole of the colony the weather has been very dry during July, the exceptions are as usual, the coast districts and part of the southern districts, that lying south of Forbes. In the north there has been very little rain, in many places not a drop.

HORSE MARKET.

MESSRS. T. COSGROVE AND CO.—Owing to the great racing carnival at Randwick, business this week has been somewhat interrupted, especially on racing days, when business of every kind appears to run second to sport. The arrival of stock was large, and competition for good animals keen. In the draught stock class the market was very tame, owing to the large numbers shipped from New Zealand, and sold here last week. We had some very nice buggy horses forward, the whole of which sold at prices ranging from £25 to £40 each, and amongst the number of buggy pairs forward, one handsome pair of bays realised £110. Strong active van horses still remain firm, and sold up to £36. No carriage pairs worthy of note to hand this week, but we had a few match carriage horses which sold up to value. We disposed of some thoroughbreds, including Gillembob, Tommy Dodd, and Keira at fair value. Well-bred saddle and harness horses are wanted, and command high figures. We obtained this week 60 guineas for an animal in this class, the property of Mr. Lewis; spring-cart and other light saddle and harness horses sell readily from £7 to £12. We also sold a large number of vehicles, and several buggies, sociable, cab, and other turnouts.—September 5.

MR. GEORGE KISS.—Owing to the race meeting being held during this week, business has been somewhat slack, although the quantity of fresh country horses to hand was small. The quality would compare favourably with those to hand during the past few weeks. Carriage and buggy pairs are scarce, and for first-class animals of either class high prices can be obtained. The best prices obtained this week for carriage pairs were 105 guineas; buggy pairs up to 80 guineas. My quotations are—Saddle and harness horses, from £20 to 40 guineas; medium draught and van horses, from £20 to £35; heavy draught, £35 to £45; first-class hackneys are not easily obtained, and sell at fair prices, according to quality.—September 6.

MESSRS. WILLIAM INGLIS AND CO.—The market was rather dull during the past week when compared with the sales which we have had for the past month, but nevertheless there were a good number of superior horses disposed of during the week, as will be seen from the following summary:—Chestnut stallion, £100; bay stallion, £107; bay colt, £73 10s; 17 Clydesdale mares, £50 to £90; 52 mares, £30 to £40; 30 head of cart horses, £25 to £30; 25 head of useful harness horses, £15 to £25; 30 light horses, £5 to £10.—September 6.

Messrs. W. Howard Smith and Sons' new steamship Burwah arrived in port at 9 o'clock on Saturday night, and was berthed at Struth's Wharf. A description of the Burwah, taken from a Melbourne contemporary, was published in Friday's issue of this journal. A thorough inspection of the accommodation of the vessel shows that the statements made therein underrated rather than exaggerated the excellences of the Burwah. The saloon is a really beautiful apartment, with its rich walnut fittings, dark-green curtains and coverings to the revolving chairs, handsome ceiling, electroplated door-knobs, &c., and the berths are large, well ventilated, and well arranged. The ladies' boudoir is a very attractive room on deck, being part of the house which covers the stairs leading to the saloon, and there is an excellent piano there for the use of the passengers. The smoking-room is next to the captain's cabin, forward of the funnel, and is so attractive and cosy-looking that it is certain to be well patronised. For steerage passengers the accommodation is certainly much more comfortable than has hitherto been the case in coasting vessels. The Burwah is altogether a decided improvement upon the class of vessels hitherto employed on the coast, and there is no doubt that in the Queensland trade, for which she was built, she will speedily become a favourite, and her owners reap the reward of their spirited enterprise. The Burwah left Melbourne at 2.40 p.m. on the 6th instant, adjusted compasses in Hobson's Bay, and cleared Port Phillip Heads at 9.30 p.m. same day; arrived off Wilson's Promontory at 4.40 a.m. on the 7th, but did not pass the light until 6.20 a.m. owing to very thick rain; passed Gabo light shortly after 10 p.m. same day; passed Cape St. George at 1 p.m. on the 8th, and arrived in Sydney harbour at p.m. same day. Experienced light westerly winds and thick rainy weather to Wilson's Promontory, similar winds to Ram Head, and moderate head winds and fine weather to arrival. The Burwah leaves for Queensland ports in a few days, under the command of Captain J. H. South, long and favourably known as master of the steamship Kellawarra.

Yesterday morning, at about 7 o'clock, Mr. Andrew Morton, who has for many years past been in the employ of the Port Jackson Steamship Company, died very suddenly at his residence at Manly. The deceased was in the act of dressing, when his wife, who was in an adjoining room, hearing a thud and a groan, ran in, and found him dead. The deceased was about 50 years of age. He was commander of the company's steamers in the Manly trade for about 17 years, commencing with the old well-known Phantom, and working his way up until he was appointed to the Fairlight. He was well liked and highly respected both by his employers and the public who so largely patronised his ship, and the absence of his well-known form from its accustomed post will be keenly felt by regular travellers to Manly. A number of flags were at half-mast yesterday out of respect for the deceased.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

SATURDAY EVENING.

In the Import markets business to day was quiet, and the few transactions coming under notice were at late rates. Manufactured tobacco, however, is now quoted 1d. per lb. higher in consequence of the receipt of the American cablegrams advising the damage in crop and advance in price of leaf. At the sales of station produce this morning large horns brought 40s. per 100. Bones were dearer, realising to £10 15s. per ton. Other descriptions of produce were unchanged in value.

A memorial having been forwarded to the Under-Secretary for Finance and Trade by a very large number of the mercantile community, requesting that there should be telephonic communication between the Telephonic Exchange, the bonded warehouses, and Customs stations, so as to facilitate business, a reply has been received from the Collector of Customs to the effect that the Colonial Treasurer cannot allow direct communication between the Customs stations and the public Telephone Exchange; but that he is quite willing to connect any of the bonded stores with the Custom House telephones, and to allow their use for all ordinary purposes of Customs business. It is understood that the reason why direct communication with the Customs stations cannot be allowed is, that it would prevent the proper discharge of duties by the Customs officers.

The Paris correspondent of the Economist says that the Panama Canal Company has held its meeting of shareholders, M. de Lesseps presiding. The report read contained little information on the progress of the works, but so far the company's engineers have been chiefly occupied with preliminary labours, the importation of plant, and the erection of machinery. The operations will now be pushed forward more rapidly. At the end of January last the number of men employed on the works on the Isthmus was 4741; a month later it had increased to 6844; and provision is made for 15,000 workmen next year. The report intimates that, as a great extension will be given to the works, money will be required, but the board has already authority to call up the rest of the share capital, or make an issue of debentures. It has not yet decided which method to adopt.

The Trade Journal gives the following figures respecting three years' consumption of spirituous liquors:—

Spirits, British gallons ...	29,047,303	29,634,161	29,251,754
,, imported ...	8,477,512	8,298,265	8,292,125
Beer, barrels ...	—	26,986,949	27,023,616
Wine, gallons ...	15,852,835	15,644,757	14,481,282
Tea, 1000lb. ...	158,370	160,226	165,080

The consumption of spirits was stationary, and the same may be said of beer; but in reality there is a decline of consumption per head in those articles, population having continually grown. Of wine, the consumption last year fell off absolutely, and this may have arisen either from the smaller surplus which France had to dispose of, or from the strong temperance movement among the wine-drinking classes of this country, or both. The effect of temperance in augmenting the consumption of tea in the United Kingdom is said to be very marked, but we are told that tea dealers are not happy for all that.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1883.

In view of the somewhat increased interest which recent events have given to the question of colonial federation, the publication of the chairman's draft report by the Victorian Tariff Commission may be regarded as opportune. It helps us to understand more fully than before the objects with which our neighbours across the Murray would become parties to such a union, and the conditions upon which their consent to enter would depend. There has not been much difficulty in reaching fairly assured conclusions upon those points before; but this report adds to previous accumulations of evidence. Mr. BERRY, who years ago boldly proclaimed the doctrine that federation, to be practicable in Australia, must have protection for its basis, repeated it, in other words, but with a plainness that could not be mistaken, at the late railway dinner at Albury. Amidst the effusiveness of other speakers, he intervened with the candid intimation that if union was to take place the interests of Victorian manufacturers must be considered. We knew what that meant, and offered an explanation at the time. The report of the chairman of the Tariff Commission is confirmatory of our views. The report is interesting for several reasons. It shows how strong a hold protection has gained upon the people of Victoria. It partially explains that fact by evidence that the system is upheld by the collective support of a number of trades, each of which seeks the special promotion of its own separate interest, although protection might go to the winds so far as others are concerned. It indicates the near approach of a time when the protected manufactures of Victoria will be in a bad way unless the command of outside markets can be secured; and it expresses the belief that if that command is to be secured, there must be protection of Victorian manufactures not only in Victoria itself, but also in the colonies which Victorian manufacturers desire to exploit.

In one respect the report is at variance with itself. In one paragraph it is said that many articles "are now not only made in sufficient quantity to meet all home wants, but are actually being made here for the markets of other colonies, where they hold their own against the world." In another it is pointed out that the other colonies are not likely to agree to an arrangement that would protect them all from the rest of the world, but let Victorian manufactures in free, because, amongst other reasons, "they prefer to purchase from Europe or America." Why this preference if Victorian goods can hold their own against the world? It is admitted that the products of Victoria "are as free to enter the markets of the surrounding colonies, and upon the same terms, as are the products of any other part of the world." Does not the preference for European or American products then indicate that Victorian manufactures, though the products of protection, are either inferior in quality or higher in price, and for the one reason or the other do not, as a matter of fact, hold their own against the world? Would manufactures in this colony, if protection were set up in the interest of Victoria, have a better prospect before them when the home market had been supplied?

It is sometimes said of protection by its advocates here that it is essentially a temporary policy, required only to give manufactures a fair start, after which they could run alone without the nurse's aid. That representation has been repeatedly met by demand for proof. Where are the protectionist countries that are throwing off protection because it has served its purpose? This seductive theory is certainly not supported by the report. After asserting that in Victoria many home products now supply the home market, and are being made for exportation as well, the report says:—"Protection at this point might be supposed to cease, having completed its work; but the Victorian manufacturers, in order to maintain their position in the outside market, must feel assured of the home trade." This is an admission that protection in Victoria has failed to establish manufacturing industries that could compete on equal terms with corresponding industries of other countries even in the Victorian market. How, then, could they be expected to compete abroad? In other words, if protected manufactures are to be sold abroad, the selling price must be kept down abroad by keeping it up artificially at home. "Wages, interest, and general expenses are higher here than elsewhere, and the hours of labour are shorter, so that, without the command of the local market, free from the fluctuations which speculative imports occasion, our manufacturers would be manifestly placed at a disadvantage; and the loss of the export trade, which they are cultivating with so much energy and success, would speedily follow upon the loss of the home markets, which our policy now secures for them." That is to say, the conditions of production in Victoria are less favourable than elsewhere, and production is therefore more costly. Victorian goods could not therefore compete abroad with goods produced more cheaply elsewhere, unless by the continuance of protection Victorian producers were enabled to get enough profit for both home trade and export trade from the pockets of Victorian consumers. Protection must be continued in Victoria in any case, but if the other colonies would set up protection against the world outside, the Victorian export trade would be as secure as the home trade of Victoria.

It is worthy of notice how clear it is that to the framer of this report a perception of these principles prohibits the formation of a Customs union by the Australian colonies. The Victorians perceive them, and, says the report, "We are convinced that it is useless to attempt the establishment of anything" of the kind. The other colonies, unless they can be so far misled or blinded that they fail to perceive what their neighbour is aiming at, will arrive at like conclusions. The candour of the report is refreshing. If the colonies could come to an agreement "by which a tariff could be adopted which would completely protect them from the rest of the world, while leaving their trade with each other absolutely free and unfettered, this colony would be immensely benefited thereby. Our manufactures are firmly established and constantly extending, and with the absolute command of all the Australasian markets, which such an arrangement would give us, our advance would be rapid and sure. But it is because this fact is so certain and clear that this arrangement will not be agreed to by the other colonies. They do not wish to assist us in this way; they prefer to purchase from Europe or America; and if they protect themselves against other countries, we may rest assured it will not be for the purpose of giving us their custom, but for the purpose of establishing their own manufactures, which it would be as difficult for them to do in competition with us alone as it is for them now in competition with the world. While therefore any system of intercolonial free trade based upon an Australian Zollverein is not likely to be adopted by the other colonies, any general system which is not based upon that plan will not be agreed to by this colony." We do not admit the accuracy of Mr. MIRAMS' views as to the possibilities and prospects of the other colonies in a competition with Victoria. Here at any rate some of the chief natural conditions for the success of manufacturing enterprises are more favourable than they are there. But we may accept his evidence as to the views and aims of his own people. Upon his showing, union with Victoria means the denial of our own preferences and the sacrifice of our interest for the "immense benefit" of Victorian trade. After that, we must charge a considerable discount upon those professions of broad Australian patriotism with which the cause of federation has been advocated by some of our friends across the Border.

A very interesting sketch of the present condition of scientific knowledge with respect to volcanoes is given in the last number of the Edinburgh Review, our interest in which question has been recently aroused by the great disturbances in the Straits of Sunda. It is one of those scientific questions as to which we cannot make experiments, and as to which our powers of observation are limited, and this is perhaps the reason why there have been so many theories propounded which have had to be abandoned. Even now there is no theory which completely covers all the facts, although we seem to be nearer to an understanding of these earth-throes than our grandfathers were.

That our earth is cooling is now a demonstrated fact. According to Sir WILLIAM THOMPSON'S estimate, it loses every year heat enough to melt 777 cubic miles of ice. This heat goes off into space. A cooling body contracts, and some changes in the earth's surface necessarily result from its diminished heat. The size of the earth as it is at present is the result of a compromise between the expansive force of its internal heat and the compressive effect of the weight of its material. Any disturbance of this equilibrium necessarily tends to a modification of size, and as the earth gets cooler it tends to get smaller. One effect of a diminution in size is that the crust of the earth becomes corrugated and cracked, these changes happening where the resistance is least, or where lines of cleavage predispose to fissures.

The theory that the earth is hollow in the centre, and has only a solid crust, has been disproved by Sir WILLIAM THOMPSON, who has shown that the earth is solid throughout, and possesses a rigidity not less than an equal bulk of steam. The constant movement of the tides makes an unequal pressure on certain portions of the surface, and the earth yields to this varying pressure, but slightly less so than it would if made of an equal bulk of steel. But though solid, the interior heat for some distance is greater than the surface heat. As far as experiments have gone, they show an increase of one degree Fahrenheit for every 64 feet of depth. But when the deepest bore in the world is only 417? feet, or a little more than three-quarters of a mile, while to the centre of the earth is 4000 miles. If the heat went on increasing at the rate which it does for the first mile, we should get to the temperature of the sun, which is estimated at 18,000 degrees, before we got a twentieth part of the distance from the surface of the earth to the centre, and that is a temperature at which every known substance would, under ordinary atmospheric pressure, be instantly volatilised. But though the increase of temperature cannot go on at the same rate, there is heat enough within a short distance below the surface to account for all the phenomena of volcanic discharge. Mr. MALLET considers that thirty miles is the greatest depth at which the source of volcanic disturbance should be looked for. The reviewer thinks that this is an exaggeration, and that twenty miles is the extreme limit, and that the majority of volcanoes draw their supplies from a source about four to eight miles deep. The temperature of lava is estimated to be not less than 3000 degrees, so that any theory has to account for the generation of heat to that point.

Volcanic vents are very unequally distributed over the world. The Continent of Europe has but the one which forms such a splendid background to the Bay of Naples. The Mediterranean Islands have six. Asia has twenty-four, one half of which are in the peninsula of Kamschatka. Africa and its islands have twenty-seven, North and South America eighty-two, and the Pacific and Atlantic Islands one hundred and eighty-one. In the main the volcanoes, which have been called the safety-valves of the earth, group themselves along great sinuous bands, following the larger outlines of continental elevation. The Pacific Ocean is almost girdled with them. The great chain of mountains on the west of America, from Mount St. Elias in British Columbia to Mediolarna in Patagonia, is marked by a series of cones. The Aleusian Islands have no fewer than forty-eight volcanic summits, which connect the volcanic peninsulas of Alaska and Kamschatka. On the western side of the Pacific the line of volcanic activity is marked through the Kurile Islands, Japan, the Philippines and Moluccas, throwing off a western branch by Java, Sumatra, the Andaman and Nicobar Islands, and an eastern branch across the South Pacific as far as Easter Island and the Marquesas.

One remarkable fact connected with volcanoes is that they are nearly all close to the sea. The principal exception is in the Thian-Shan mountains in Central Asia, which are fifteen hundred miles inland. But even here the exception is thought to be only apparent, inasmuch as what is now Lake Lob is supposed to be the diminutive survival of an Asiatic Mediterranean. It is a very natural theory that volcanic outbursts must be due to sea water getting into heated hollows and causing a sudden and rapid generation of steam. But this theory is hardly supported by the facts. EHRENBERG remarked that volcanic cinders were even found to contain a quantity of fresh water infusoriæ, and it is observed that the very active Hawaiian craters, rising as they do out of the ocean itself, scarcely furnish any of the chlorides resulting from the decomposition of sea-water. Dr. COAN has noticed there that an access of igneous energy is frequently preceded by unusually heavy and continuous rains, thus showing that it is quite as likely to be fresh water as salt water that finds its way down. There seems no doubt, however, that sea water finds its way to the subterranean cauldrons of Vesuvius, the emanations from which contain abundantly, and in due proportions, the various elements of ocean brine. HUMBOLDT thought that islands and coasts were only richer in volcanoes because the upheaval effected by internal elastic forces is accompanied by the depression of the bed of the adjacent sea; so that an area of elevation borders on an area of subsidence, and at the limit between these areas great and profound clefts and fissures are occasioned. These clefts and fissures are great characteristics of volcanic discharge. The conical formations which, in popular imagination, are associated with the idea of volcanoes, are rather the exception than the rule, and the greater portion of volcanic discharge has followed long lines, overflowing on either side, and often leaving the parent dyke discernible.

But even granting that the earth is contracting and buckling in consequence of its diminishing heat, the problem has still to be accounted for how the special heat is generated to which volcanic discharges are due. After reviewing different theories, the writer looks upon Mr. MALLET'S theory as the one that best meets the facts, although it is not complete, and this theory is that the heat is generated by the crushing movement within the particles of the crust of the earth, and that as the heat is in this way generated it is discharged where the resistance is not strong enough to keep it in. This theory is in harmony with HUMBOLDT'S formula that vulcanism is "a reaction of the interior upon the exterior of a cooling globe, in which case volcanic action will go on so long as the earth is altering its size and external contour as a consequence of its gradual refrigeration."

Warm weather approaches, and with its advent come the usual civic suggestions to the citizens to be economical in the use of water. In our semi-tropical climate it is a pity that people should be restricted in the use of one of the commonest and most indispensable of God's gifts. With the growth of the metropolis the purity of the atmosphere is diminished, and the need for the use of water rendered all the greater. By-and-bye, when the new water supply scheme is complete, we hope to have abundance of that element. With regard to the air, it is true we have it in abundance, but unfortunately it is vitiated ere it can be breathed. The health of the people can never be ensured whilst there is a lack in the supply either of pure air or water, and people will naturally expect our governing authorities to do their best to give them a bountiful supply of both. To this end our civic authorities have a great deal to do. The MAYOR has accomplished much in the way of shutting up improper dwellings, and rooting out many evils. He may accomplish much more by the institution of means for securing a better sanitary condition of the city. Happily, we have not had such a desolating visitation as some Egyptian towns have recently experienced. But with the diminishing purity of our water, and the prospects of a limitation in the supply, together with the general insanitary condition of the city, we can scarcely feel sure of immunity from disease. We are not disposed to be hypercritical towards our civic rulers. But they certainly need to display a little more energy and intelligence in regard to sanitary questions than they have hitherto done. The smallpox scares of the past year or two supplied incentives to action; but the city needs something more than spasmodic efforts at reform will give it. People require to be not only encouraged and coerced into obedience to the laws framed for the general welfare, they also require to be instructed; for much of the work to be done lies beyond the scope of authority and command. Hints on the best way of preserving health are scattered broadcast during an epidemic. But when it is past, and people are left to the exercise of their own sweet wills, they are too apt to relapse into a state of indifference. How to arouse them from their apathy and secure their attention to the necessity for cleanliness is one of the problems which the controlling powers of great centres of population have to solve. And it is a problem the solution of which our own Corporation has appeared too loath to attempt. In the face of many difficulties and dangers, the INSPECTOR OF NUISANCES has exposed terrible plague-spots. But his duties are too multifarious to permit of the effective performance of his functions as sanitary inspector. What the city wants is a much more thorough inspection than it receives. In the lanes, at almost any hour of the day, may be seen masses of corruption emitting their poisonous gases. People throw their refuse into the streets and lanes, utterly regardless of the dangers which are almost certain to arise from such an ignorant, barbarous practice. That which is the most convenient is the most practised. But the practice requires to be checked with a strong hand. If notices were posted about our thoroughfares warning people against such a foul custom, much good might result. And then there needs a much more improved system of collecting and removing house rubbish than the one in vogue. Attention to these and many other matters is urgently required; and if that attention were bestowed we could bear with better grace a curtailed water supply during the summer months, whilst as to the air it would certainly be kept freer from impurities.

Although our ASTRONOMER does not take a very hopeful view of the possibilities of thoroughly irrigating the great western plains of this country, there is yet nothing in his conclusions to prevent the belief that very much may be done to increase its grazing resources. As a matter of fact, large areas of land, formerly arid, have been made into good squatting properties by pioneers, to whom have been given long leases on such favourable terms as to induce them to construct dams and otherwise render the country habitable. Mr. RUSSELL does not think it would be possible to impound more than three out of the four and three-quarter inches of surplus rain water that flows by the Murray to the sea. On the basis of calculations made in Egypt and elsewhere, Mr. RUSSELL believes that that quantity would not suffice to irrigate the whole surface of Riverina. But if only half or a quarter of this vast territory were irrigated, what a vast addition would be given to the stock-producing resources of the country. It may be doubted whether agricultural operations will ever be possible, owing to the lightness of the rainfall; but that means will be found for the conservation of water and its use to stimulate the growth of artificial grasses to sustain cattle in a time of drought like the present, we entertain no doubt whatever. It will be more advantageous to adopt such measures in many places than to suffer the loss of stock, or have to bear the cost of their removal in very dry seasons. It is quite possible that every run in the colony may yet have its paddock of artificial grass fostered by irrigation—a provision that will be invaluable during a drought. That sheep should be allowed to perish by tens of thousands, as they are at present perishing, is a reflection on the forethought, if not the humanity, of our squatters. This state of things is very largely due to our land laws, which fail to give such a tenure to our pastoral leaseholders as to lead them to make improvements that would save their stock.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

BOTH France and China appear anxious to avert the threatened recourse to arms. The Chinese envoy at Paris, the Marquis Tseng, has made to the French Government certain proposals, with a view to a pacific settlement of the difficulty. These proposals are to be taken into consideration by the French Government to-day (Monday). One of Reuter's messages states that the Marquis Tseng's proposals have been favourably received by the French Government. They embrace the establishment of a neutral zone between Chinese territory and that subjected to French influence. The English fleet in Chinese waters is to be strengthened, and a German squadron has been ordered to cruise about the various ports to protect German interests.

MISCELLANEOUS items by cable announce that Mr. Gladstone has gone on a cruise off the coast of Scotland to recruit his health and strength after his official labours. The French Press, in dealing with the Pacific annexation question, denies that France has annexed the New Hebrides. An item which will interest Australians is to the effect that Hanlan has challenged E. C. Laycock to a sculling match on the Thames. Admiral Pierre, the French commander, who made himself conspicuous by his offensive actions towards the English Admiral and English residents at Madagascar, has returned to France in a critical state of health. All hope of his recovery has, it is said, been abandoned.

WITH reference to the London colonial wool sales, it will be seen by our cable messages in the commercial column, that up to Saturday 188,000 bales had been catalogued, out of which 22,000 had been withdrawn. The prices show no material change, whilst the market is weak. There has been an absence of demand on the part of foreign buyers, and Mr. Helmuth Schwartz attributes this to the unsatisfactory condition of Australian wool.

WITH regard to the visit of the Minister for Works on Friday last to the southern division of the Metropolitan Sewerage Works, we learn from official sources the following details of the works now being carried out:—The first contract is that of the Bourke-street sewer, from the south side of Botany-road along Bourke-street to Phelps street, with branches along Phelps, Arthur, and Nobbs streets, 16 and 18 inches in diameter for a distance of 28 roods 95 chains, and 21 inches in diameter along Nobbs-street to Dowling-street some 9 chains in length, while the sewer, which is to be oval in shape, will be in dimensions 3 feet 3 inches by 2 feet 2 inches and 3 feet 2 inches, comprising a length of about 114 chains. This contract is in an advanced stage of completion. The second contract is the main southern sewer, which runs up to within 9 chains of Cook's River, commencing 9 chains from the north bank of Cook's River, and running between Botany-road and Bourke-street. This sewer will be 4 feet 6 inches by 3 feet 6 inches for 6 roods 60 chains, and oval in shape, and then a 5 feet 6 inches circular sewer for a length of 2 miles 31 chains. In this contract also the work is being rapidly pushed on.

IN reference to the paragraph that appeared in our issue of Saturday regarding the Sydney Liedertafel, we are informed that the list of performing members is not full. To prevent the higher voices being overbalanced, the committee have temporarily closed their list to first and second basses; but gentlemen having tenor voices, and able to pass the society's musical test, will be welcomed. It will be interesting to the subscribers and friends of the Sydney Liedertafel to learn that the active steps now being taken to provide more ample accommodation will probably enable the committee to nearly double their subscription list at the end of the present season.

THE committee of the Australian Jockey Club and the secretary are to be congratulated upon the success which has attended the spring meeting. The reunion terminated on Saturday, when the attendance was very numerous, and some high-class racing was witnessed. The steeplechase was the great attraction, and it afforded a pretty race. The Queensland colt Le Grand again proved his superiority by winning the Randwick Plate very easily, and he promises to be the colt of the season. A full report will be found in another column.

IN addressing the Melbourne Church of England Sunday School Association the other day, Bishop Moorhouse took occasion to impress on teachers the necessity, if they desired to keep in contact with real conditions and real requirements, to study the newspapers in which the conditions and needs of the day are reflected. He advised the teacher to "keep a book for suitable newspaper cuttings of the present day, as they supplied the materials for hundreds of lessons." And, he added, "The Bishop of Manchester found the matter for the whole of his public addresses in the newspapers, and he was one of the most successful speakers in England. Of course the speeches were marked with the stamp of his own energetic and practical mind, but the paragraphs furnished them in the first instance."

PRUSSIAN advices received at Vienna announce an important piece of news. The Khan of Bokhara has, it is reported, pledged himself to permit the passage of Russians at any time and for any purpose they please through his dominions, either in the direction of Merv or towards Afghanistan. The Khan has further engaged to provide the Russians in such movements with mules or camels and provisions.

THE Zoological Society's grounds at Moore Park are likely at no distant date to become a most fashionable place of resort. The attractions of the grounds, which are being rendered as beautiful as possible under existing circumstances, and the interest attaching to new arrivals of choice specimens of quadruped and ornithological life, are combining to this most desirable end. On Saturday afternoon the grounds in question were thronged with visitors, who seemed to take a great interest in the exhibits, the principal attraction amongst the latter being "Jumbo," whose popularity has not abated in the least. Whilst the animals as yet in the possession of the society are not numerous, they are good of their respective kinds, and the nucleus is now formed of what should, under proper encouragement, be in the future a fine exhibition. One of the pleasing features on Saturday was the orderly manner in which the sightseers deported themselves, there being none of that vulgar pushing and selfish endeavouring to get a view generally witnessed at such places. An additional attraction was afforded by the presence of the Coldstream Brass Band, and altogether a most enjoyable afternoon was spent. The receipts so far have been satisfactory, an average of £3 per day having been taken.

ON Saturday afternoon a presentation of a most gratifying nature was made to Mr. A. W. Walsh in recognition of his services as hon. secretary of the New South Wales Naval Artillery Volunteer Corps, which has recently been formed with the sanction of the Government. From the commencement of the idea of a new branch of defensive forces being formed, Mr. Walsh devoted himself most assiduously to carrying out the intentions of the promoters, but lately felt compelled to resign his office through other engagements, and the corps decided to recognise his services by a substantial present. The presentation was made at the Amateur Boat-shed, Circular Quay, where a large number of the newly-enrolled members of the corps attended. The presentation took the form of a magnificent silver tea and coffee service, and silver inkstand, from the establishment of Messrs. Myers and Solomon, of this city. The principal piece of the set bore the following inscription:—"Presented to A. W. Walsh, Esq., by members of the New South Wales Naval Volunteer Artillary, in appreciation of his voluntary services as secretary during the formation of the corps. September, 1883." Sir Edward Strickland, K.C.B., who had also taken a warm interest in the formation of this as well as another corps at Manly, was appropriately entrusted with the duty of making the presentation, and in doing so he referred in eulogistic terms to the valuable services rendered by Mr. Walsh, and stated that whilst they regretted that Mr. Walsh was compelled to resign, they were to be congratulated upon having found an able representative in the person of Mr. John A. Inglis, who had been appointed to the vacant position. The presentation having been made in the usual manner, Mr. Walsh replied in suitable terms, after which Captain R. Sallier, R.N., made a few appropriate remarks. A vote of thanks was tendered to Sir Edward Strickland and Mr. F. Cavill, the latter gentleman having rendered good service to the corps, after which the company separated.

THE Good Templars of H.M.S. Miranda held their final meeting in the Temperance Hall, Pitt-street, on Saturday evening, on which occasion there were about 600 visitors present from different lodges, including a large muster of men from H.M.S. Nelson. Mr. F. Perkins, C.T., presided. The meeting was opened with the usual Templar formality, after which, some ordinary business having been done, a vote of thanks was accorded with enthusiasm to the visitors. This was responded to on behalf of almost every Good Templar lodge in the city and suburbs. All the speakers united in good wishes to the brethren who are soon leaving for home. A beautifully illuminated address was presented, amid much applause, to Mr. John S. Shearston, seaman's missionary. It was bound in leather, in album form, tastefully ornamented in gold lettering, and was generally much admired. Mr. Shearston, in acknowledging the kindly gift, said that although he met occasionally with much to discourage and dishearten him in his work, yet he had always felt cheered and helped by the officers and men of the Miranda. The genial sympathy and kindness bestowed on him in his endeavours to do his best to promote the sailor's welfare was received by him with gratitude. He wished the men a safe voyage home, and urged them to be firm and stedfast to their total abstinence pledges. The lodge charts and insignia were then handed to the missionary to be used hereafter in establishing a lodge for the new ship's company of the Miranda when she returns here. The master-at-arms also addressed the men, giving them some excellent practical advice, which was well received. Some music was then performed, after which the meeting closed with prayer and the hearty singing of the National Anthem.

AN occasional traveller writes that on going to the suburban line ticket window at the Redfern railway station on Thursday last there was no clerk present to give him a ticket. In consequence he missed the train, and had to wait 27 minutes for the next one. On Saturday he went to the same window on the arrival of a tram, and was served by a clerk in the most provokingly deliberate fashion, and had in consequence hardly time to get into the train just about to start. Where trams arrive at the railway station almost at the moment of the starting of a train, it is of importance that clerks should be at their post, and quick in their movements. Deliberation may suit a country station, but is hardly in place at Redfern.

THE master of the brig Fawn, which arrived from Timaru on Saturday afternoon, reports that a very curious atmospherical phenomenon occurred at 11 p.m. on the 30th August, and whilst his vessel was in latitude 37·19 S. and longitude 166·18 E. There was a S.S.E. gale blowing, the night was very dark, and the weather was thick and "dirty," when suddenly a very bright light, "just the same as an electric light," burst forth about west by south, and illuminated the sky for some seconds. The light appeared to be close to the water, and was stationary. When it "went out," the sky became quite red, and continued so for about ten minutes afterwards. Captain Dillnar says that he has often seen meteors at sea, but he never saw anything like the light referred to or its after results.

THE danger which is at times associated with the game of football was fully shown in the case of a boy named William Easton, on Saturday afternoon, in Moore Park. It appears that he had the ball in his possession, and was running across the ground, when another boy rushed up and pushed him over, with the result of breaking his right thigh. He was subsequently conveyed to the hospital, where the fractured limb was set by Dr. Mushett.

MR. ANDREW MORTON, who for many years was commander of one or other of the Port Jackson Steamship Company's boats, died very suddenly at his residence, Manly, yesterday morning. He was in the act of dressing, when he fell and expired almost immediately. He was last in command of the Fairlight, and all who have been accustomed to travel by that boat to and from Sydney, and to whom his presence was familiar, will regret to hear of his death. The company's flags yesterday, on the wharfs and on the steamers, were at half-mast out of respect to the deceased.

ABOUT half-past 10 o'clock on Sunday morning the dead body of a man, whose name is at present unknown, was found in the scrub about a quarter of a mile from the Bunnerong-road, near Randwick, by William John Osborne, who reported the matter to the police. The body was subsequently removed to the South Sydney morgue. The deceased appears to be about 60 years of age, is 5 feet 6 inches in height, medium build, fair complexion, and has grey hair and whiskers; he had on two pairs of dark tweed trousers, a blue serge coat, and a black vest, and he also wore old elastic-side boots. The matter has been reported to the City Coroner. The police are anxious to obtain any information which might lead to the identification of the deceased.

A MAN named Ernest Wood, who was found in a helpless state by a constable, was conveyed to the hospital on Saturday night under somewhat peculiar circumstances. He was completely speechless, and shortly after admission wrote a statement to the effect that he was standing at the corner of Campbell-street when a man walked up and kicked him in the stomach, knocked him down, and poured some liquid into his mouth and over his eyes, which took away his senses. Upon examination at the hospital it was found that his eyes were much inflamed; he was very drowsy, and bore marks of violence about the body. Up to a late hour last night he had not recovered speech. The affair is a most mysterious one, and the police are unable to gain any further information respecting it.

A SMALL boy named John M'Gee Crawley, who resided with his father, a taymaker, at 118, Moorhead-street, Redfern, met with a very serious accident on Saturday. It appears that the little fellow was standing close to an engine which was at work on the premises, and whilst in the act of stooping to pick something up was caught by the fly-wheel and thrown some distance, his head unfortunately coming into contact with a projecting piece of iron. He was picked up in an unconscious state, and was conveyed to the hospital as speedily as possible. It was found that on the right side of the head, about two inches above and directly in a line with the right ear, he had sustained a lacerated scalp wound two inches long; a depressed fracture of the skull was felt, and it was subsequently discovered that a piece of bone, nearly half an inch broad, and over an inch long, had been completely separated from the skull, and was fairly in the brain. The symptoms rapidly became urgent, and a consultation having been held by the medical staff it was decided to raise the depressed portion of the skull. This was successfully done without the operation of trepanning, and the patient progressed so favourably that in a short time he recovered sufficiently to recognise his father. He is now progressing as well as can be expected.

ABOUT half-past 9 o'clock on Saturday night a fire was discovered in the forecastle of the Clarence and Richmond River Steamship Company's steamer Coraki, which was lying in the A. S. N. Company's patent slip at Pyrmont. The fire was first observed by the foreman of the place, Mr. M'Ritchie, who gave the alarm, and the Pyrmont and Ultimo fire brigades were promptly on the scene, and subsequently succeeded in extinguishing the flames. A quantity of old bedding was destroyed, and the upper portion of the deck was burnt, but fortunately the damage was only trifling. The fire originated in one of the berths, but how or by what means has not been ascertained.

IN reference to the proposal to destroy rabbits by inoculation, the Age remarks:—Would it be wise, or would it be prudent even, to inoculate hundreds of thousands of rabbits with tuberculosis, and leave their dead bodies to be decomposed and scattered in the form of dust by the four winds of heaven, without something approaching to an absolute certainty that they would not carry infection along with them? We all know enough of the way in which disease spreads in some forms from the lower animals to man, and are careful to avoid it; and we should be no less careful to guard against infection by the germs of disease floating around us in the atmosphere if that theory is to be considered as established. Phthisis or consumption is one of the most dreaded forms of human disease, and to run the risk of increasing it, either by contact with infected rabbits, or by using their dead bodies as an article of food, by exposing ourselves to germs of the disease in the atmosphere, appears to us to be little short of madness. There would not, it is said, be any great risk run in using their dead bodies as an article of food, if exposed to sufficient heat to kill the germs of disease in cooking them, but there would still be "death in the pot," and who can say what amount of heat would be required to avert the lethal tendency? Altogether, therefore, it appears to us that we should be as well without this new discovery as with it, if not, indeed, better.

THUS warning to people travelling on the Continent of Europe is given by a correspondent of the World:—"No wonder hotel robberies are so frequent on the Continent when the proprietors are so negligent. At the Hotel 'T.' at Ostend I was awakened about 4 o'clock a.m. by a man in my room. He was in nightdress, without shoes, and was inspecting the articles on my table. Being daylight I mistook him for a servant of the hotel, calling some one, and having mistaken the room. I asked in French what he wanted. He mumbled something and walked out of the room, shutting the door behind him. I found on inquiry that he had visited another room and had stolen 250 francs. Both the occupant of that room and myself recognised him at breakfast the following morning, and pointed him out to the hotelkeeper; he was also seen the following night leaving another room, by a chambermaid, who recognised him. In spite of this he was allowed to leave the hotel with his baggage in the hotel omnibus thirty-six hours afterwards."

ALLUDING to Sir Henry Brand's probable retirement from the Speakership of the House of Commons, the London Telegraph observes:—"Mr. W. Charles Townsend tells us, in his 'History of the House of Commons,' that the first Speakers were chosen from belted knights and commoners of distinction, the choice having been made by the House, but in accordance with the previous nomination of the Crown. Sir Thomas Hungerford, in the year 1376, is the first Speaker named in the Parliament roll, and was termed 'parlour' or mouth of the House, but as the ancient Parliament rolls recorded only the acts that passed between the two Houses, it may be conjectured that the antiquity of the office is coeval with the sitting of the Commons apart from the Lords. Thus, if Sir Thomas Hungerford were the first to bear the august title now so worthily worn by Sir Henry Brand, tradition assigns the origin of the office to the still more remote day when Peter de Montford was elected to it in 1260, Henry III. having then been forty-four years upon the throne. The predecessors of Sir Henry Brand stretch back, it will be seen, in unbroken line over 623 years, and many of them have filled the chair for a longer period than the 11 years during which the present distinguished occupant has held it. Among them have been numbered some who subsequently ascended to the highest place in this realm that a subject can fill—as for instance, Sir John, afterwards Lord, Wenlock, elected to the chair in 1454; Robert Harley, elected in 1700; the Honorable William, afterwards Lord, Granville, elected in 1789; and Henry Addington, better known as Lord Sidmouth, elected in 1790. Mr. George Henry Jennings, in his valuable 'Anecdotal History of Parliament,' gives us, indeed, the names of Sir Henry Brand's 116 predecessors, among whom there were doubtless many of noble manners and 'majestical carriage.' We are but expressing, however, a universally felt sentiment when we say that no previous 'First Commoner of the Realm'—a rank and style conferred by statute upon the Speaker by Parliament under William III.—ever retired from the chair followed by a greater tribute of personal regard than will be accorded to the right honorable gentleman who was first elected to preside over the House of Commons in February, 1872."

COMPLAINTS have (says the Albury correspondent of the Age) been made from time to time by traders at Wodonga that they were not allowed the same concessions on the carriage of goods which are extended to storekeepers on the New South Wales side of the river, who import from Melbourne. It would now appear that the railway authorities in Sydney practice the same system of maintaining differential rates, with a view to force trade with Sydney and discourage trade with Victoria. At the meeting of the Albury Municipal Council, on Wednesday night, one of the aldermen called the attention of the Mayor to the fact that Albury storekeepers were placed under a disadvantage from the cause in question, the mileage rate being greater from Albury than to Albury. So great was the difference in this respect that a person living midway between Albury and Wagga Wagga would effect a material saving by the purchase of goods in Wagga Wagga rather than in Albury.

THE fifth lecture of the winter course in connection with the Young Men's Christian Association will be given this evening, at the Protestant Hall, by the Rev. James Jefferis, LL.B. Subject—"Sunrise from the summit of Etna." The choir of the Pitt-street Church will conduct the service of song.

LEGISLATURE OF WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PERTH, SATURDAY.

His Excellency the Governor prorogued the Legislature at 3 o'clock this afternoon until the 12th December next. The vice-regal speech, referring to the railway land grant schemes, says the Crown agents will be authorised to enter into provisional arrangements with Sir Julius Vogel or Mr. Anthony Hordern, or with both, for the construction of railways from York to Eucla and from Beverley to Albany. With reference to the York and Eucla Railway connecting with the harbour works at Fremantle, the Governor says that the scheme may be accepted as a central and not impracticable idea. Owing to its geographical position, the colony must eventually assert itself by the construction of such a line which, with the ultimately certain co-operation of South Australia, would diminish the time occupied in the transit of mails between Europe and the Eastern colonies. The revenue was answering the most sanguine expectation. The balance in hand had been raised to £95,000. The Governor considers that the House wisely deferred expressing an opinion on the subject of responsible government, and holds that circumstances exist showing that the time for a change had hardly yet come. The speech was moderate in tone and judicious, and gives general satisfaction.

Much discussion has already taken place on the question whether the Bishop should receive the title of "My Lord," but this title is already used generally.

ACCIDENT TO THE RANELAGH (s.).

BRISBANE, SATURDAY.

Another untoward accident has happened to the A. S. N. Company's steamer Ranelagh. Whilst proceeding down the River Fitzroy yesterday afternoon, she struck on a rock and knocked a hole in her forehold. She had on board about 25 saloon and 20 steerage passengers, all of whom were landed, and subsequently returned to Rockhampton. The rock which she struck is said not to be marked on the chart of the river. The water, which rushed in through the broken plate, found its way to a quantity of lime, which was ignited, causing some alarm on board, but prompt measures were taken, and the fire was speedily extinguished without much further damage. Several professional divers and a gang of men have been sent from Brisbane with the necessary appliances for effecting repairs. The full extent of the damage done will not be known until the divers examine the vessel, which will have to be beached.

NEWCASTLE, SATURDAY.

A public meeting, convened by the Mayor of Wickham and the Municipal Council, is to be held in the Wickham School of Arts on Monday night for the purpose of co-operating with the Sydney movement for the amendment of the law of libel and contempt of Court.

At the preliminary meeting respecting the law of libel and contempt of Court, held on Thursday evening, in the lecture-room at the Plattsburg Institute, the following resolutions were adopted to be moved at the forthcoming public meeting, to be held in the Wallsend School of Arts, on the 20th instant:—1. "That, in the opinion of this meeting, the laws relating to libel as affecting the press require to be clearly defined by special enactment, and so modified as to discourage merely speculative actions, and to relieve newspaper proprietors from the necessity of providing minor details when it is proved to the satisfaction of a jury that their strictures have been, broadly speaking, true, without malice, and for the public benefit." 2. "That the power at present exercised by the Judges in dealing with charges of 'contempt' of Court should be so defined that the guilt or innocence of the accused shall be determined by jury, excepting always misconduct within the precincts of a court whilst a Judge is sitting." 3. "That a memorial embodying the foregoing resolutions be drawn up and presented by deputations to the Government. Also, that petitions to Parliament be prepared for presentation." The members of the city and county are to be invited to move and speak to some of the resolutions.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

THE AUSTRALIAN JOCKEY CLUB SPRING MEETING.

FOURTH (STEEPLECHASE) DAY, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 8.

Under the management of the committee of the A. J. C. Patron, his Excellency the Right Honorable Lord Augustus Loftus, G.C.B.; judge, Mr. A. Town; handicapper, Mr. J. A. Scarr; starter, Mr. R. Rouse; clerk of the course, Mr. J. Ashworth; secretary, Mr. T. S. Clibborn.

As was anticipated, a great crowd found its way to Randwick to witness the last day's racing, and when the flag went down for the Randwick Plate, the attendance was about the largest ever seen at a spring gathering. His Excellency the Governor was present, and a number of tastefully-dressed ladies promenaded on the lawn during the intervals between the races. Basilisk was made a very warm favourite, with the odds on him, for the Hurdle Plate, and he won easily, after having made all his own running. According to the conditions, he was put up for auction after the race, and was finally bought in for £200, so that after winning the prize his owner lost £75 by his victory. Under similar circumstances many owners would have scratched the horse, and the conduct of the stable in giving the public such a straight run for their money is deserving of the highest commendation. Ten went to the post for the Members' Handicap, and on the strength of his previous running and his excellent condition Bristol was very freely backed. But although he was very carefully ridden the weight told, and he failed to get a place; so did Bayard, who was next in public estimation. The race was a pretty one all the way, and Delusion putting in her claim when fairly in the straight, won comfortably from Ike. Only four were saddled for the Randwick Plate, and when the betting opened the layers of odds demanded 6 to 4 about Le Grand; but when it began to be whispered about the paddock that the colt had got his muzzle off during the previous night, and had made a meal of his bedding, they became more liberal and accepted even money. The friends of The Gem were very confident that he would effect the overthrow of the favourite, and never tired accepting a shade over 6 to 4 about the Metropolitan winner. Le Grand went to the front soon after the start, and pulling Nicholson nearly out of the saddle, cantered in front of his horses all the way, and won very easily, while the brave little Sardonyx beat the others in the run home. Both are in Monaghan's stable, and the way in which Le Grand has improved since his sojourn amongst us reflects the greatest credit upon that trainer. The winner, whose pedigree has already appeared in our columns, made his first appearance at the Sydney Turf Club meeting on the 26th of January, when, with 8st. 10lb. up, he ran third to Iklagonda (6st.), and Finesse (6st. 3lb.) for the January Stakes, five furlongs, in 1 minute 5¾ seconds. After that he returned to Queensland, where the Sires' Produce Stakes and other races went down before him. At the late Hawkesbury meeting he beat Kingsdale and others for the Produce Stakes, and at the late A. J. C. meeting he has carried his colours to the front for the Derby, the Craven Plate, and the Randwick Plate. He will remain in Monaghan's stable to undergo his Melbourne Cup preparation, and if all goes well with him his party will have a good chance of securing the £60,000 for which they have already backed him. Judged by the easy way in which he bowled along on Saturday at the end of his long journey, he is likely to be the colt of his year, and his straight-going owner, Mr. Jost, and the sporting community of Queensland, are to be congratulated upon possessing such a brilliant representative. The Randwick Plate nearly always resolves itself into a certainty for a three-year-old, and it is time that the scale of weights be altered; for, as it stands at present, a six year old is made to give a five 2lb., a five to give a four 7lb., and a four to give a three 30lb., and the allowance to three of the last-named year is far too much. Masquerade was most fancied for the Waverley Handicap, but he never showed prominently; and Lord of the Lake, patiently ridden by English, came through when the others were done and won easily, thus proving that he did not run up to his true form when the stable gave him its confidence at the Hawkesbury. The Steeplechase was a capital exhibition of jumping, and would certainly have been won by Songster had not King mistaken the course before coming to the last fence. Lord of the Forest, for a wonder, fell at the second of the treble the second time round, and being grounded between the two fences, Mr. Terry had to ride him out over the palings. Parade ran well till reaching the back of the course the last time round, when he slipped up in landing, and lost a deal of ground. Old Wrangler ran surprisingly well, and nearly caught Shamrock on the post, while Blackall, excellently ridden by Hunt, was only beaten a neck by Parade for third place. Hunt is about to become a public trainer, and should do well. The public were delighted with the race, and the club will act unwisely if they ever omit it from the programme. A large field stripped for the Free Handicap, and at first Norman found favour at 4 to 1; but later on Here's Luck was backed with such spirit that he left off at 5 to 2, while Norman and the others went back in the market in consequence. The friends of the favourite must have made a great mistake, for he was never in it at any part, and Albert Victor, a son of old Kelpie, surprised everyone by winning a great race from Yately, who, with 9st. in the saddle, ran a wonderful race, and further proved that those who stood him for the Hawkesbury Handicap, wherein he had the comfortable impost of 7st. 8lb., had reason on their side. The starting was better than on the two previous days, but the weights for the Hurdle Plate were very much mixed in the book, whereby considerable inconvenience was occasioned. The meeting has been a thorough victory for the handicapper, for in almost every handicap the judges failed to unravel the mystery until the horses did so themselves, and it is time the public realised the fact that it is not wise to bet on handicaps at Randwick. The following is an account of each race:—

THE HURDLE PLATE, of 100 sovs. For four-year-olds, 10st. 10lb.; 5 years, 11st. 7lb.; 6 years and aged, 11st. 10lb. Horses that have never started in a hurdle race allowed 7lb. The winner to be sold for 100 sovs.; 7lb. allowed for every reduction of £25 on selling price down to £25. 2 miles. Entrance, 1 sov.

Mr. T. J. Frost's b g The Deer, £25, 5 years, 10st. (Regan) ... 0

Betting: 5 to 2 on Basilisk, 3 to 1 v. War Eagle, 8 to 1 bar two.

The moment the word was given, Basilisk cleared out from his horses, and forcing the pace all the way, won easily from War Eagle, who was attended by Uhlan, Pyrrhus the First, and Rejected. The Deer jumped Regan out of the saddle at the first hurdle, and was never in it afterwards. Time, 3 minutes 55 seconds.

THE MEMBERS' HANDICAP, a handicap sweepstakes of 5 sovs. each, 1 forfeit, with 100 sovs. added. For three-year-olds. Second horse 20 sovs. from the prize. 1 mile and a furlong.

Mr. H. Herbert's bl c The Demon, 3 years, 6st. 4lb. (Hanley)... 0

Betting: 2 to 1 and 5 to 2 v. Bristol, 5 to 1 each v. Bayard and Ike, 7 to 1 each v. Wallangra and Blue and White, 8 to 1 each v. Delusion and Le Beau.

A good start gave Ike a slight advantage; but he was steadied, and Blue and White going to the front at Cutts' just led Palarenda and Ike to the back of the course, where Narina joined them and led after topping the hill; but they all tired at the home turn, save Ike, who got to the front at the distance, and looked like having it all his own way, till Delusion closed upon him, and Bristol in the centre of the course took up a good position. The weight told on Bristol in the run home, and Delusion fairly outpacing Ike, won comfortably by more than a length, Wallangra was nearly three lengths off third, and then on pretty intimate terms came Blue and White and Bristol, while Bayard finished last. Time, 1 minute 57½ seconds.

THE RANDWICK PLATE, of 350 sovs. For three-year-olds and upwards. Second horse 100 sovs. from the prize. Entrance, 1 sov., to go the third horse. Weight for age. 3 miles.

Betting: 6 to 4, and afterwards even money, on Le Grand; 2 to 1 on The Gem; 6 to 1 v. each of the others.

Sweet William was the smartest to move from a good start, but before they had gone 100 yards Le Grand, despite Nicholson's efforts to keep him back, took up the running on his own account, and led a length past the stand, attended by Sweet William, The Gem, and Sardonyx in order. At Cutts' the colt overpowered his rider for a few strides, and increased his advantage to four lengths, but was steadied at the far side of the course. Le Grand led past the stand for the second time by a length, at a good strong pace, followed by Sweet William, The Gem, and Sardonyx, with a length between them. They closed up a little at the back of the course, but, when approaching the half-mile post, the favourite extended himself, and led round the bend by four or five lengths. He turned into the straight with more than a length advantage of the others, and then Sardonyx, having settled the pretentions of the others, made his final run at the distance. He reached the colt's quarter, but had no sooner done so than the son of Epigram spread himself out like a racehorse, and, drawing away, won easily by a couple of lengths. The Gem finished about three lengths from Sardonyx, and led Sweet William by a length for third place. Time, 6 minutes 12½ seconds.

THE WAVERLEY HANDICAP, a handicap sweepstakes of 5 sovs. each, 1 ft., with 200 added. For three-year-olds and upwards. Second horse 50 sovs. from the prize. A winner of a handicap after the declaration of the weights to carry 10lb. extra. 1¾ mile.

Betting: 3 to 1 v. Masquerade, 4 to 1 v. The Joker, 5 to 1 v. Yately, 8 to 10 to 1 v. any other.

Gloucester got the best of a pretty good start, while Pell Mell was the last to leave the post. Yately then took up the running and led Lord of the Lake two lengths past the stand, followed by Gloucester, Rosinante, and the Joker. Gloucester ran into second place at Cutts', and joining Yately at the back of the course, the pair cut out the running to the home turn, closely attended by The Joker and Lord of the Lake, who headed them at the distance, and won rather easily by a length from Gloucester, who was double that distance in front of The Drummer. Then on close terms came Masquerade, Pell Mell, with the others clustered, and whipped in by The Joker, Yately, and Rosinante. Time, 3 minutes 6½ seconds.

THE STEEPLECHASE, a handicap sweepstake of 5 sovs. each, 1 forfeit, with 200 sovs. added. Second horse 50 sovs. from the prize. Over such course and jumps as the committee shall direct. About 3 miles.

Betting: 2 to 1 v. Songster, 5 to 2 v. Parade, 3 to 1 v. Shamrock, 6 to 1 v. Crusader, 8 to 1 v. the others.

Crusader led over the first fence, followed by Shamrock, Songster, and Parade, and all got over without a rap. Songster then ran into second place, and when taking off at the second fence nearly slipped up under it, but, recovering himself, cleverly got over safely. Crusader led over the treble in front of the stand, followed by Songster, Shamrock, Parade, Lord of the Forest, Wrangler, and Blackall in Indian file, and the same order was observed till the treble was passed for the second time, when Crusader had an advantage of two lengths of Songster, and Parade went into third place, attended by Shamrock. Lord of the Forest made a mistake at the middle fence, and came to grief, and Wall's arm was hurt by the fall. Songster then went to the front, and led to the back of the course, where Crusader, Wrangler, and Parade were bunched, and the latter, hitting the big fence hard, fell on his haunches, but Corrigan did not part with his saddle, and only lost about a dozen lengths by the accident. Going well within himself, Songster led up the hill, and round the bend he had the race in hand; but King, thinking that he had to go round again, went the wrong course, and, Crusader tiring out of it, Shamrock was left at the front, attended by Wrangler, Parade, and Blackall. Wrangler made a great effort in the run home, and ran Shamrock to a neck, and three lengths from the pair succeeded Parade and Blackall side by side, and ten lengths from the top weight came Crusader. Time, 7 minutes 7 seconds.

THE FREE HANDICAP of 100 sovs., with a sweepstake of 1 sov. each, to go to the second horse. For three-year-old and upwards. A winner of a handicap after the declaration of the weights to carry 10lb. extra. 1¼ mile.

Betting: 5 to 2 v. Here's Luck, 5 to 1 v. Norman, 7 to 1 each Hypatia, Silver Arrow, and Stockdale, 10 to 1 v. any other.

A pretty good start gave Tinderbox and Hypatia the best of it, and the former showed the way past Cutts', attended by Eva. Armidale then went up second, and with Here's Luck at his side sailed along the far side of the course within three parts of a length of Tinderbox. The hill stopped the leaders, and when rounding the bend the colours of Hypatia and Eva showed most prominently, attended by Kaipara and Albert Victor. A great race ensued all the way up the straight, and M'Grade bringing Yately on the good ground in the centre of the course caught his horses very fast, and was only beaten on the post by the shortest of half heads. Hypatia was a good third, closely followed by Tinderbox, Eva, and Norman. Time, 2 minutes 13¼ seconds.

The owners of horses that have won during the meeting can obtain their cheques at Mr. Clibborn's office any time after 12 o'clock to-day, and the general settling is to take place at Tattersall's this evening.

As will be seen by advertisement, Mr. T. S. Clibborn will hold his annual sale at Fennelly's Bazaar, at 2 p.m. to-day, when a number of well-known racehorses will be submitted.

CRICKET.

The Eastern Suburbs Cricket Club held their first annual meeting on Thursday evening, 6th instant, at the Cambridge Club Hotel (Mr. C. L. Wallis in the chair), there being a full attendance of members. The report for the past season was read, which showed the club to be, financially and otherwise, in a very satisfactory position. Twenty-four matches were played during the season, of which 10 were lost, eight won, and six drawn, the majority of the latter being in their favour. The trophy for the highest batting average was won by Mr. J. J. Ferris, with an average of 11, and the bowling trophy (presented by Mr. W. A. M'Crea) was won by G. W. Ord, with an average of 4·8 runs per wicket. The election of office-bearers resulted in the Hon. W. J. Trickett, M.L.A., being re-elected president, and G. W. Ord and J. Ferris joint secretaries, T. Ferris treasurer; and committee—Messrs. E. S. Wallis, A. Windever, W. A. M'Crea, E. W. Bramble, including the secretaries and treasurer.

A match was played on Saturday last, on Moore Park, between the Young Derwent and Rathbone clubs, which was won by the former with 51 runs to spare. The batting of C. Clark and S. Parr for the Young Derwents, and bowling of G. Breakwell and S. Parr was very good. Young Derwents scored 80, Rathbones 29.

There was a cricket match played at Moore Park on Saturday between the Pyrmont Clyde C. C. and Chelsea C. C., which resulted in a win for the Clyde C. C. by nine wickets and one run. For the Clyde C. C. the bowling of Swan and Webber was good, also the batting of Webber 21, Org 5, and Warren 5, was good. For the losers R. Booker played well; also, the Brothers Booker bowled well.

ATHLETICS.

SOUTHERN RUGBY FOOTBALL UNION.

Splendid weather attended the above sports' meeting, but owing to the superior attraction of the races the attendance was not as large as it would otherwise have been. The programme was rather lengthy, embracing a great variety of sports; and, though there were several hitches in the carrying out of the events, it must be admitted that the union gave the public a capital afternoon's fun. The flat races were, generally speaking, well contested; and the tugs of war between the football clubs, together with the two bicycle events, created great excitement amongst the spectators. Mr. R. M. Betts made an efficient referee, and Mr. Burkitt a correct timekeeper, while Mr. R. A. Arnold got through his work as starter in a satisfactory manner. Mr. W. H. Fletcher, the honorary secretary, may also be complimented upon the manner in which he superintended the affairs of the meeting. Appended are the results:—

The Club's Tug of War.—10 men aside. The Redfern, Newtown, Wallaroo, and Balmain Clubs competed. It was a splendid struggle for mastery between Newtown and Redfern, the latter at last succumbing. This was one of the finest contests of the day, White winning on the post by a few inches. Time, 16 seconds.

One Mile Walking Handicap.—A. L. Wade, King's school, 90 seconds start, 1; W. Shipway, Redfern, scratch, 2; A. Cooper, 45 seconds, 0; S. Douglas, 40 seconds, 0; A. W. Turnbull, 25 seconds, 0; W. Gibbins, 20 seconds, 0; J. Johnson, 20 seconds, 0; M. Mihill, 20 seconds, 0; A. James, 8 seconds, 0. The race was devoid of all interest, owing to the ridiculously lenient treatment of Wade by the handicapper. Wade won without an effort by 100 yards from Shipway, the latter's time from scratch being 7 minutes and 36 seconds.

Three-mile Bicycle Race Handicap.—Two prizes. J. M. Fergusson, S. B. C., 375 yards, 1; G. W. Godwin, S. B. C. 250 yards, 2; W. J. Paterson, S. B. C., 200 yards, 3; E. C. Wood, S. B. C., 75 yards; A. Lee overtook Wood at the end of the fourth lap, and the race seemed at his mercy, when he stopped to manoeuvre with Wood. He finally gave up through mistaking the ringing of the bell for the starting of another race as the signal for the final lap; there were three laps left, and had he gone on he must have won. Fergusson won as he liked. Time, 11 minutes 21 seconds.

Eedy, Union. Gilder had no difficulty in carrying off this prize, it being a close thing between Battye and Hawkins for second honours.

150 Yards Hurdle Race Handicap.—G. C. Addison, University (owing 8 yards), 1; E. Coombe, Harrowgate (owing 8 yards), 2; T. Alderson, and H. E. Hughes. Won by 4 yards, but had Hughes not fallen when he was rapidly overhauling those in front he must have won. Time, 26 seconds.

Half-mile Handicap Flat Race.—M. Kennett, Oaklands, 60 yards, 1; A. Henry, Newington, 40 yards, 2; J. Doyle, 10 yards, 3; E. Buckleton, 50 yards, E. Wickham, 40 yards; A. O. Trebeck, 40 yards; H. M'Glaughlan, 10 yards; W. A. Gilder, 10 yards; W. A. Battye, scratch; R. B. Hill, 60 yards; C. Patterson, 50 yards. Won with a few yards, but a good race for second place. Time, 2 minutes 9 seconds.

MINING INTELLIGENCE.

CARCOAR, SATURDAY.

The monthly escort took 730oz. gold. Rowe's party finished crushing at the Enterprise battery—from their claim situated at Galley Swamp—about 30 tons, for 28oz. 15dwt. gold. A new gold-bearing reef has been discovered this week in Mullally's paddock. Tucker and party have now 100 tons quartz at grass. They intend shortly crushing at Low's battery. A cake of gold weighing 41½oz. has just been brought in from the Prince of Wales claim, Burnt Yards. The trucks are now in working order, so that one ton of dirt can be delivered from the mine to the battery in 4½ minutes. This claim is considered one of the best in the colony. The manager has already gone through 120 feet of the reef, carrying gold throughout, which averages, when put through the battery, over 3dwt. Some rich patches of gold are sometimes found in this claim, from which over £60,000 worth of gold has been taken, although comparatively speaking little work has been done since the claim was first opened.

The mining manager of the Union Gold-mining Company, Limited, Balmorton, Grafton, reports under date 2nd September:—"During the past fortnight slabs were split for the engine house, and all other timber required for same was procured. The bed logs of the battery have all been placed in position. I have continued to take out quartz on the Sir Hercules since Friday."

The mining manager of the Red Hill Amalgamated Gold-mining Company, No Liability, Tambaroora, telegraphs as follows under date Hill End, September 5:—"Crushed 13 tons No. 1. yielding 30oz. 12dwt."

AMUSEMENTS.

THEATRE ROYAL.

"Taken from Life," the latest, and in many respects the best, of the series of sensational and spectacular dramas which have flooded the stage in recent years, was produced at the Theatre Royal on Saturday night. From start to finish the drama went with such spirit, the principal characters were sustained by such an excellent company, the incidents of the plot were possessed of so much interest, and there was such a marked absence of the dreary emotional dialogue which characterises dramas of this class, that the densely-packed audience which thronged the theatre from pit to gallery rewarded the performance with the most enthusiastic applause. The plot, which was detailed at some length in Saturday's issue, is remarkable for its simplicity (as compared with the plots of other dramas of this kind), and the incidents are so well strung together that the interest of the audience is sustained from the opening scene to the fall of the curtain. In the first act an artist, Walton Lee, is discovered to have been secretly married to Kate Denby, and thereby incurs the hatred of Phillip Radley, an adventurer, who was a suitor for Kate's hand, and the deep resentment of Kate's brother, John, a country gentleman, who is under the thumb of Radley, and was assisting him in his suit. The next act reveals the artist and his young wife and child, not only in a state of poverty, but subjected to the persecution of Radley and John Denby. The former connives at the abduction of Lee's child. Denby accidentally encounters Maguire, an excited tenant of his, in Lee's rooms, and is murdered under such circumstances that Lee is arrested for the murder. In the subsequent acts Lee is represented as escaping from prison; he returns after seven years' absence in America to the neighbourhood of his wife's residence, is discovered, and an attempt is made to re-arrest him; the man who murdered Denby makes a dying confession of his guilt, which thus exonerates Lee; Radley is found to have been guilty of forgery and fraudulently inheriting the Denby estates, to which Lee's child was entitled; the child is discovered and restored to his parents; and in accordance with the time-honoured custom of the sensational drama, the last scene reveals virtue victorious and villainy vanquished. There are two spectacular hits in the play. The first of these is the blowing down of the walls of Clerkenwell prison, when Lee manages to make his escape in the confusion. This incident is founded on the attempt made some years ago by supposed Fenians to blow up the Clerkenwell prison for the purpose of rescuing political prisoners. The scene is a very sensational one, and was so effectively managed on Saturday night as to considerably startle the more nervous portion of the audience. The other principal scene is Lee's escape on a racehorse as an effort is being made to re-arrest him. The incident occurs in a stable yard, and as Lee springs on the horse's back the animal gallops off the stage. The company, which has been organised by Mr. Bland Holt, is one of the best ever formed in Australia for the representation of miscellaneous drama. Mr. Alfred Dampier made a great hit as Walter Lee, the artist; Mr. James Carden was fairly effective as William Maguire, the Socialist; Mr. Herbert Flemming played the part of Radley, the villain of the piece, so excellently as to be heartily hissed by the audience, not only when he came before the curtain, but during the progress of one of the most interesting scenes in which he was concerned; Mr. Bland Holt, as Titus Knott, a low London character very similar in some respects to that played by the same actor in New Babylon, was highly successful, and equally popular with the audience; Mr. Charles Brown acquitted himself very creditably as John Denby; Mr. St. Lawrence as Rob Channell, an eccentric character, very much overdid the part, but managed to make it laughable; and Mr. B. N. Jones, as Joe Gallon, a trainer, carried off the palm for the most complete piece of acting in the whole drama, although the character was only a minor one. The principal ladies were Miss Annie Mayor, who deservedly received the warmest applause for her really excellent rendering of the part of Kate Denby; Miss Marston Leigh, who had not much to do as Bella Greystone, a fashionable heiress, but acted so well as to give promise of capable performance in a more prominent character; and Miss Annie Taylor, who had only a minor part, but received a cordial reception as an old favourite. The scenery, which was designed by Mr. George Gordon, and painted by Messrs. Gordon and Grist, was very artistic, and admirably adapted to the incidents of the drama.

GAIETY THEATRE.

"Rip Van Winkle" was produced at the Gaiety Theatre on Saturday night, and as the performance was a good one, and the members of the audience were pleased with it, the piece should have a good run. The play is founded on Washington Irving's romantic story of the lazy, lovable, good-for-nothing Dutchman who falls under demon spells in the heights of the Catskill Mountains, and who wakens after a sleep of 20 years—a period which has seemed to him but a single night—to find everything in his native place changed. The subject has been so treated, however, that while the incidents of the old Knickerbocker legend have all been preserved, they have been added to and enlarged upon, and the result has a distinct flavour of both "The Woman of the People" and "Struck Oil." There are present in it that condemnation of the curse of drink, and the revelation of the misery produced in a household by the drunken habits of the head of it, which were characteristic of the former play; and the machinations of a rascally burgomaster to obtain by fraud property left by Rip for his wife and child remind one of the intriguing and scheming of Deacon Skinner in "Struck Oil." The play is not a great literary work, but it is full of interest and of action, the scenes are lively, and the scenery is new, and some very pleasant singing is introduced. Herr Bandmann impersonates Rip (for the first time on any stage), and in doing so essays the representation of a character very different from those in which he has hitherto appeared. He succeeds very thoroughly in his self-imposed task; for, naturally enough, his assumption of the Dutch accent is perfect, while he is equally successful in reproducing the careless, laughter-loving, dissipated Rip of the first two acts, and the aged, feeble, half-demented Rip of the third act. His acting is free from exaggeration, or apparent effort, and so all his scenes, especially the farewell to his home, and his awaking from his long sleep, are very telling. In the first act he sings a German song, and other members of the cast sing a chorus to this, and afterwards perform a picturesque lantern dance. Miss Louise Beaudet as Lorena (Rip's daughter), only appears in the last act, her most effective scene being that where she recognises her long-absent father. She also sings a couple of ballads very tunefully, and takes part in a duet with Hendrick (Mr. Arthur Rodney). Miss Jennie Gwynne acts the part of Gretchen with spirit and good taste; Miss Alice Johns is a charming Teresa, and sings "Du, du liegst mir im Herzen" excellently; and Miss Blanche Reeves does well as Catherina. Mr. John Musgrave makes Derrick Van Slaus appropriately miserly and tyrannous, and thereby supplies a good contrast to other characters in the drama. Mr. Rodney plays Hendrick in manly fashion, and Mr. Charles Labbett is a capital Nick Vedder. The spectre scene in the mountains is effectively managed, the actor who plays the demon dwarf doing remarkably well. Careful preparations have evidently been made for this drama, for the performers were all letter-perfect on Saturday night, and the scenery was new and good, the set representing the peak of the Catskills, with the (limelight) moonbeams playing on a cascade of real water, being heartily applauded. During the acts tea was, as usual, served to the ladies present. "Rip Van Winkle" will be repeated nightly until further notice.

OPERA HOUSE.

There was a large attendance at the Opera House on on Saturday night to welcome the reappearance of Mr. and Mrs. Polk. What was termed on the bills a "modern society comedy," and entitled, "An Arabian Night, or Haroun Alraschid and His Mother-in-Law," was produced before a Sydney audience for the first time. The groundwork of the play is of an extraordinary nature, and presents some situations of an exceedingly ludicrous kind. Alexander Spinkle, a retired broker, indulges a taste for romance by assuming the name of Haroun Alraschid, and going in search of adventures. He desires to display a little philanthropy, but like many other people who indulge in similar whims, does not see far enough ahead to think of the possibility of his generosity leading him into trouble. He becomes the benefactor of a vivacious circus equestrienne known as Rose Maybloom, and after he leaves her she determines to discover the name of the one who has befriended her. In pursuance of this determination, she impetuously repairs to his house, arriving during the absence of his wife. Unfortunately for Spinkle (or Haroun), his mother-in-law is living at his house, and it becomes necessary to resort to deception in order to outwit the old lady. Spinkle tries to induce Rose to go away, and she is willing to do so, but discovering that her parasol has been removed during her absence in the library, she is seized with a desire to regain the missing article. Spinkle and Rose make an eager search for the parasol, and whilst looking under the table are surprised by the mother-in-law (Mrs. Weebles). Spinkle had just received intelligence to the effect that he was about to receive a visit from his niece, and in order to baffle the old lady, he resorts to deception by introducing his visitor as his expected niece. He is ingenious enough to get his pretended niece out of the house as speedily as possible. Subsequently the real niece (Kate Spinkle) arrives, and he considers it desirable to get her to withdraw her presence from the place before she has been seen by the mother-in-law. His wife returns about the same time, and in the absence of her husband meets the real niece. In a strange manner both the pretended and the real niece receive invitations to dine with Mr. and Mrs. Spinkle, but Spinkle's ingenuity saves him the unpleasant consequences which might arise from his having two nieces come to the house instead of only one. Spinkle places the equestrienne in a boarding-house opposite his residence, and whilst he is telegraphing from one of the windows of his drawing-room to the window occupied by the circus-rider, he unhappily gets caught by the mother-in-law. His frequent absences from the house have made the old lady exceedingly curious, and her curiosity becomes heightened by what she has just witnessed. She thirsts for knowledge which will enable her to clear up what to her is a great mystery, and with a view to encompassing her desires secures the co-operation of a society fop (Lafayette), who is to be rewarded by Mrs. Weebles aiding him to secure the hand in marriage of the lady who is supposed by both to be Spinkle's niece, but who in reality is the equestrienne. Spinkle is in the unenviable position of having to regulate the appearances and actions of some four women, and especially of his real as well as his pretended niece. A circus performer, who has been commissioned to find Rose Maybloom, who is a runaway from a circus, appears on the scene, and is assisted in his mission by Spinkle. Rose, however, does not entirely accord with the plan for her removal from a place where her presence is likely to give rise to strange complications. Eventually the real niece, who has to be kept out of the way for a time, is owned by her uncle, and cordially received by her aunt. Rose Maybloom elopes with Lafayette, but discovering his shallowness, and his want of means, she declines to marry him, and then returns to the place where her presence was likely to be exceedingly troublesome. Spinkle confesses to his wife in such a way as to justify his conduct. Rose Maybloom is acquitted of having done anything requiring forgiveness, the mother-in-law finds that she has been victimised by her own folly, and Lafayette appears in a ridiculous plight, but gets no sympathy. The comedy abounds with the ridiculous, and it was undoubtedly owing to that fact that the house was kept in roars of laughter. Mr. Polk sustained the rôle of Spinkle, and invested the part with the utmost interest. Mrs. Polk was a charmingly vivacious exponent of Rose Maybloom, and Mr. John L. Hall gave a very ludicrous representation of "Hercules Sermith, cannon ball performer." Mrs. Edouin Bryer gave an admirable representation of the imperious, dictatorial, cunning, inquisitive Mrs. Weebles, the mother-in-law. Mr. George Forbes lost his identity in the silly Lafayette Moodle, a society fop, and Mr. A. W. Boothman sustained the character of Herbert Rembrandt (an artist) whose specialty is a speech remarkable for the number of sesquipedalian words which it contains. Kate Spinkle, the niece, found a natural exponent in Miss Myra Kemble. Louise Spinkle (the confiding wife) was ably pourtrayed by Miss Lily Bryer. The scenery was of a very admirable description, and the orchestra performed an excellent programme.

MASONIC HALL.

The Federal Minstrels, who are playing at the Masonic, had a full house on Saturday night. They comprise some of the best male vocalists in the colonies, and the programme they offered contained several beautiful melodies. There is of course the usual humorous effusions that emanate from such companies, and the orchestration is of an excellent order throughout. The entertainment concludes with a whimsicality termed "The Sorceress," in which the leading minstrels engage in solo and part singing; and Mr. Charles Heywood, a male soprano, represents several female characters, and also acts the part of a bird charmer.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

Mr. Fred. W. Millis' entertainment at the Academy of Music drew a fairly large attendance on Saturday evening. The ventriloquial portion of the programme was especially well given. Mr. Millis is an exceptionally good ventriloquist, and his cleverly carried-out conversation between the various players in his little comedy are cleverly sustained, and each of the characters given a distinct individuality. Not the least attraction was the distribution of gifts at the conclusion of the entertainment.

SATURDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

Another of the popular concerts carried out under the conduct of Messrs. Hallewell and C. Huenerbein was given in the Protestant Hall on Saturday night, when there was a very fair attendance of the public. The programme opened with the duet, "Flow gently, Deva" (Lader) by Mr. Hallewell and Mr. H. Pier, and it was rendered in good style, notwithstanding that Mr. Hallewell was suffering from a slight affection of the voice, brought about by a cold. In the succeeding number, which consisted of the song, "Thee do I love," taken from the opera bouffe "Boccacio," the singer, Herr Bernard Sanden, was announced to make his first appearance. It was anticipated that at least a fair rendition of the song would be given by Herr Bernard Sanden, but his efforts were by no means successful, and he failed to make any impression on the audience. There was no expression nor any trace of verve put into the song, and instead of proving to be one of the most popular pieces in the programme, it met with the least favour. Mr. Beaumont Read appeared in the next number. He gave the descriptive song "The Little Hero," and his singing met with a most cordial reception. The piece, however, which was most enjoyed during the evening was the cantique "Nazareth," which was given by Mr. Hallewell, with both pianoforte and organ accompaniment. To a slight extent his indisposition interfered with his singing, but his efforts were highly successful, and he gave such a good account of himself in the piece that the audience recalled him, but he did not respond to an encore. Miss Marie St. Clair appeared in the song "Out on the Rocks," in which the audience did not fail to recognise her merits, and she was enthusiastically applauded. Mr. Charles Huenerbein then gave a pianoforte solo, his selection being the "Carnavale de Venise," and the performance was a very clever one. Signor Ricardi rendered the nautical ballad "Tom Bowling" in good style, and the rendition of the song "My Pretty Jane," by Mr. Redd, concluded the first portion of the programme. After a brief intermission Miss Marie St. Clair and Mr. Beaumont Read appeared in the duet "Oh, ye Voices Gone" (Zeta), and they sang so well that they were recalled. Mr. Hallewell sang "The Village Blacksmith," after which Mr. Beaumont Read rendered, by special desire, the ballad "Please give me a Penny," and he received an encore. The song "The Last Rose of Summer" was remarkably well given by Miss Brown, and she also was encored. Amongst the remaining numbers on the programme was a sacred ballad by Miss Marie St. Clair, taken from the works of Charles Packer. The concert proved a success, and was brought to a close by the National Anthem being rendered by the company. Mr. Charles Huenerbein acted as accompanist throughout.

Our Melbourne correspondent telegraphs that at the Opera House on Saturday night Verdi's Opera Company made their last appearance, when the opera of "Don Giovanni" was performed. The Williamsons have made another success in "Eureka." The Majeronis have achieved quite an unusual success in their play "Jealousy," and are drawing remarkably large audiences. Emily Melville's company are still playing "Fatanitza" at the Princess Theatre.

THE COMET.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—On Friday morning Mr. Ellery and I both looked for the comet in the position given, and could not see it. A correct copy of the cablegram has now been received, and explains the reason. It says:—"Faint comet discovered in 'Draco' September 3, R. A., 16 hours 30 minutes, declination 65 degrees north, moving slowly south." This position is below the northern horizon, and we shall not be able to see the comet for some time.

The MINISTERIAL VISIT to the SOUTH.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

COOTAMUNDRA, SATURDAY.

The Hons. Messrs. Dibbs and Abbott, accompanied by Messrs. Lyne, Garvan, and O'Mara, Ms.L.A., arrived here by ordinary train this morning, and were driven to the Albion Hotel. There they were received by the members of the Cootamundra Vigilance Committee and other gentlemen, and the health of the Ministry was proposed by Mr. James Simpson, chairman of the Vigilance Committee, and drunk in champagne. After breakfasting the Ministerial party left by special coach (driven by J. Lloyd, the well-known whip and manager for Cobb and Co.) for Tumut, via Gundagai. They will stay at Gundagai for luncheon, and will reach Tumut this evening.

TUMUT, SATURDAY.

The Ministerial party reached Gundagai shortly before 1 o'clock to-day, after a pleasant drive from Cootamundra. At Gundagai they were received by a number of gentlemen who had come from Tumut to meet them, including Messrs. E. G. Brown, J.P., M. Toohey, J.P., P. Kiley, J.P., N. Emanuel, J. L. Josephson, and L. Brennan. A welcome was also given to the Ministers by the people of Gundagai. No special preparations had been made to entertain them, as their destination was Tumut, and there was no time for staying in Gundagai longer than was necessary for luncheon; but Mr. Love, P.M., Mr. P. J. O'Donnell, J.P., Mr. Weeks, C.P.S., and other gentlemen met them, and on behalf of the residents formally welcomed them to the town and district. Both Mr. Dibbs and Mr. Abbott returned thanks for the compliment paid to them, and in doing so remarked how strongly they had been impressed with the enormous extent of land they had seen on their journey suitable for agriculture. Immediately after luncheon the Ministers, and members of the Legislature travelling with them, left in company with the deputation from Tumut, taking the road via Brungle. This route was chosen in order that the Ministers might see as much as possible of the rich flat land in the lower valley of the Tumut, which presents all the signs of great fertility, and is recommended by the residents of this district as a most suitable route for a railway. The want of a railway is said to be seriously felt by almost everyone, for the district is so remote from easy communication with important business centres that farmers cannot get their produce to a proper market. At Brungle the party was met by several residents of the neighbourhood, the principal of whom were Messrs. Donald and Alexander M'Gruer. The latter gentleman, on behalf of the residents of the place, read an address of welcome, which mentioned that this was the first occasion on which any members of a Government had paid a visit to Brungle, and it was hoped that such impressions would be formed from the visit as would be favourable to the district and conducive to its future welfare. Mr. Dibbs said a few words in reply. The whole party were then invited to accept the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. A. M'Gruer. The Ministers were heartily cheered on resuming their journey to Tumut. At various points on the road, which was so situated that it gave the visitors some exceedingly attractive views of wooded mountains and richly fertile valleys, people from Tumut joined the party, and several miles from Tumut the vehicles and horsemen had so increased in number that they formed a very long procession. Near Tumut the town band appeared; and then, with the band in one vehicle leading, the Ministerial special coach decorated with the Australian ensign coming next, a long line of buggies following, and a perfect cloud of horsemen a little distance ahead of all, the town was entered. But before actually reaching the town the visitors had an opportunity of seeing something of the exceeding beauty of the land which immediately adjoins or surrounds the town. For rural loveliness it is not, as seen by the light of a declining sun this afternoon, to be surpassed, if it can be equalled, by any other spot in New South Wales. The road into the town passes for, perhaps, two miles through a lane, lined on each side thickly with the hedge rose. Behind this hedge the fields, covered with the bright green of the young wheat crops, stretch far back to where the Tumut River runs, and a range of hills, or mountains, rise here and there marking the course of the river, and in places behind the rose bushes, near the road, are clumps of the weeping willow, just budding into leaf, and with just sufficient leaflets about the branches to charm the eye with the delicate pale green and yellow tints of the willows' spring covering. Leafless poplars, too, and other trees form striking features in the landscape, and close to the town is the river stream, running rapidly with a flood of snow water, bordered densely with a pretty vegetation, and spanned by a bridge; and immediately beyond the bridge, and by the river side, half hidden by the trees, is the spire of a picturesque church. Altogether, the view is one likely to impress any visitor very forcibly, and to those acquainted with the old country it possesses many of the characteristics of English scenery. The visitors to-day were warm in its praise, and indeed the people of Tumut pride themselves upon living, as they say, in one of the prettiest places to be found anywhere. On reaching the Royal Hotel, the Ministers and those with them were received by a crowd of people, numbering probably 300. Besides those gentlemen who accompanied the Ministerial party from Gundagai, the visitors were met at Tumut by Mr. Vyner, P.M., Dr. Lynch, the Messrs. Marks, Mr. R. Newman, and other leading residents of the district. The greeting was a very cordial one, and Mr. O'Mara, who is the member for Tumut, and at whose instance the Ministers have made this visit, was also exceedingly well received.

At the balcony of the hotel, and in the presence of the people, Mr. E. G. Brown read the following address:—

"To the Honorables George Richard Dibbs, Colonial Treasurer, and Joseph Palmer Abbott, Minister for Mines. Gentlemen,—We, the inhabitants of the Tumut, have to offer you a hearty welcome to the district. It is with great satisfaction we find you have spared the time to visit us, and enable us to show our appreciation of your efforts to obtain a personal knowledge of the several portions of this colony. Though on your way you have viewed some of our most fertile lands, you have had but a glance at the wealth and prosperity of our district, and the scenery for which the Tumut is noted. We trust that your stay among us may be pleasant, and on your leaving that you will take with you happy and lasting reminiscences of your visit. I am, your most obedient servant, EDWARD G. BROWN, on behalf of the inhabitants of the Tumut."

Mr. DIBBS returned his heartfelt thanks for the cordial reception given to his colleague and himself. He could not for a moment imagine that this welcome was given to them, who were strangers among the people of Tumut, so much as it was given to their esteemed member, Mr. O'Mara; but for that portion of the welcome intended for the Ministers, he desired to return his sincere thanks. They had greatly enjoyed their ride from Cootamundra and from Gundagai through what he supposed must be the most beautiful spot in Australia. (Hear, hear.) A stranger seeing such an audience as that now before him, where every man was a cavalier mounted on his own horse, and a good one, too, and where even the aboriginals of the soil seemed to be able to appear in a similar condition, might be pardoned if he were struck by the presence of so many well-to-do people. It was an evidence of the undoubted prosperity of the district. He had travelled through the lands of England, and had seen the choicest spots in Tasmania, but no place he had visited in all Australia had so much reminded him of the green lanes and valleys of old England as did this Tumut plain. (Cheers).

Mr. ABBOTT said that, as a member representing a country constituency, and as one who had spent the whole of his life in the Northern districts, he could say he never was more astonished than when travelling to-day from Cootamundra to see the great richness of the land and the prosperity of the people. No stronger evidence of the prosperity of the people of the colony could be had than by paying a visit to this district. As the Minister presiding over the Mining Department of the colony, it was peculiarly gratifying to him to come amongst them, and he hoped he would be able to see something of the mineral resources and wealth of the district before he left it. His visit to Tumut would be one of the sweetest memories of his life, and he was under a deep debt of gratitude to their member, Mr. O'Mara, for having induced him to come here. He hoped it would not be the last opportunity that he and his colleague would have of coming amongst them. (Cheers.)

Loud calls were then made for Mr. O'MARA, who said he was very glad to be amongst them again, especially under the circumstances which surrounded them at the present moment. He thought that on this occasion, as their member, he had rendered them some service, and some signal service. (Cheers.) He had been the means of inducing to come amongst them, to see their prosperity and their beautiful district, two of the most intelligent and upright Ministers that had ever shared in the government of this country. (Cheers.) He was perfectly satisfied that the visit could be productive of nothing but the greatest good to them all; and if it were productive of such good, he was pleased with the service he had been the means of rendering them. (Cheers.) Mr. O'Mara then called for three cheers for the Queen, and this having been responded to, the visitors were conducted inside the hotel, and their health was drunk in champagne. Toasts were also proposed to the continued prosperity of Tumut, and to Mr. Garvan, M.L.A., and Mr. Lyne, M.L.A., as visitors to the town.

On Monday night a banquet will take place here, and on Tuesday morning the Ministerial party will leave for Adelong.

THE CONGO DISPUTE.

The correspondent of the Standard, writing from the Congo River, on June 15, gives some interesting items relative to the territory which is just now the cause of some excitement to France, Portugal, and Belgium. He says:—

"The rapidly growing interest in things concerning the Coast of Africa adjacent to the Congo, and in that river itself, is undoubtedly due to the labours undertaken during the last few years by Stanley, De Brazza, the expedition under Dr. Güssfeld, and more lately to the attempt at annexation by the Portuguese nation. To show that the advance in interest has not been paralleled by a corresponding advance in information, and to supply this want, are the main objects of this and my future letters of the subject. But while this programme requires time, things are passing to which attention should be called on the instant. While I am describing the existing Government under which whites and blacks live together amicably another Government is proposing to supplant this arrangement, and it is urgent to sketch out some objections to the proposed change.

"The Portuguese are supposed to possess, in the full sense of the term, the coast from Mossamedes to Ambriz inclusive, and they now wish to occupy the further territory from Ambriz to Landana, including the Congo River. They base their claim on the right of discovery, in particular affirming that the Congo was discovered by Diego Cam, in the year 1485. The voyage is undeniable, but the discovery is very doubtful. The Portuguese historian, Joao Felix Pereira, admits that he claims the first circumnavigation of the continent for the Portuguese, in opposition to Bochart, Bougainville, Bruce, Daper, Gatelin, Goes, Huet, Larcher, Marmol, Michaelis, Mignot, Montesquieu, Paris, Pluche, and Salmasio; and a first coasting circumnavigation implies the discovery of the coast, and of all considerable rivers breaking that coast. It is stated, I believe by Daper ('Descrit. de l'Afrique, Trade du Flamand'), that two centuries before the so-called discovery by the Portuguese a Flemish colony existed on the Congo, which was abandoned on account of the deadly climate. I have described the Portuguese as being 'supposed' to possess certain territory, because, as a matter of fact, they do not possess it. Between Ambriz and Loanda there exists a tribe that denies right of passage to the Portuguese between these two places, so that all communications have to be made by sea. They have been known to allow other nationalities to pass, and have shown themselves perfectly friendly; but they have up to this day resisted all interference by the Portuguese. And this is the Power which the English Government would entrust with the direction of affairs on the Congo. Then, there is the astounding declaration that Portugal is to take the Congo for the purpose of suppressing the slave trade. The slave trade does not exist in the sense in which the House of Commons understands the term. There is, indeed, slavery among the natives themselves and a few Portuguese, but it is very rare to find a white man of any other nation who possesses slaves. Perhaps I shall be told that this is the kind of slave trade struck at. If so, I must ask people to look around and then judge whether the Portuguese could or would crush the native feudalism, leaving the question open whether such interference, if practicable, would not produce more harm than it professed to cure. I can adduce evidence to show that the Portuguese Government do not possess the means of suppressing the holding of slaves by Portuguese themselves on the Congo River.

"The slave traffic does not exist on the Congo River, nor on the contiguous coast-line; and if the Portuguese Government bring forward its suppression as a plea for their occupation, it is a shameless attempt to entrap the English by specious promises which can have no realisation. The ignorance of the English Government can surprise no one here; there is no English official stationed at any place between Gaboon and Loanda, and the visits of men-of-war are of the rarest occurrence. But this simple fact shows better than the most elaborate arguments that the English and the natives live together on amicable terms, and that if there be any differences, as at times there must be, they can be settled in a friendly manner without the intervention of governmental assistance. The calling on the English Consul for aid during disputes with the natives marks an era in the life of the trading station, and in the majority of the few cases where this has been done it has been more due to impatience to obtain a speedy settlement than to any grave necessity. Though the privilege is most valuable, it should not be resorted to except as a last resource. Another statement which should be denied without delay is to the effect that the French have taken military occupation of Ponta Negra and Loango. The only ground for the report is that the commander of the French gunboat Sagittaire purchased in Loango and Ponta Negra ground for the establishment of stations for the expedition of De Brazza, and in Ponta Negra the Portuguese traders originated a rumour that the country was being taken by by France, and induced the natives to petition the Governor General of Angola to let them be Portuguese subjects rather than French. Had the Portuguese Government done the like, the natives might with equal facility have been roused to ask for English or French interference. It is also probable that the report has gathered ground from the action of the French commandant in Gaboon. A short time ago the commandant anticipated a rebellion of the native tribes in the Gaboon River, and therefore ordered all trade firearms to be withdrawn from the trading stations by a certain date, and all trade gunpowder to be delivered into Government custody. Some traders were of the opinion that this order would be countermanded, and so continued to order arms from Europe; but at the expiration of their notice the landing of these arms was prohibited, and the firearms were carried south by mail."

TAYLOR v. WEST AND ANOTHER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—As the above case seems very properly to have created a considerable stir in the community, I think it desirable that every statement that may have appeared in your paper in connection with this matter should be accurate in every particular.

Your correspondent in yesterday's paper states that when the case was first tried, the plaintiff claimed £19 damages for an alleged nuisance extending over several years; surely he could not have made himself acquainted with the facts of the case, or he would have written months instead of years. The house was only finished in 1881, and nearly 18 months elapsed before the defendants commenced building their machinery sheds, and the nuisance which formed the ground of the action commenced. If I have followed accurately the judgments of their Honors, I fail to see any vital difference of opinion between them, with the exception that Judge Dowling expressed himself more strongly in favour of the defendants than Judge Wilkinson did. The evidence in both cases established the fact of a nuisance existing, and the law admitted of no other interpretation than that which guided their Honors in giving a verdict for the plaintiff with costs.

In this colony, where the influence of the working man seems paramount, it is not difficult to understand the plaintiff's desire to have the case tried by a Judge alone, seeing that many outside influences might cause a jury to sympathise more with one interested in establishing a local industry than with one who had been foolish enough to build himself a comfortable home in a locality such as the one in question.

His Honor no doubt acted to the best of his judgment in visiting the scene of action, but its value would altogether depend on the strictest secrecy being observed in carrying out such an object, which I have no doubt was carefully acted on.

I think it scarcely possible to over-estimate the importance of this case to all classes of the community, for it would be a sorry day for New South Wales, if class interests should create a sense of injustice in the minds of any amongst us who, having by their energy and labour attained a competency, should fail to be protected in the rational enjoyment of their well-earned leisure.

I am, &c., SCRUTATOR.

TEMPORARY PADDLE WHEELS FOR A SCREW STEAMER.—American papers state that Captain Ewer, of Ardrossan, master of the Glasgow steamship Ardenrigh, is credited with a somewhat novel invention. When about 300 miles from land, the propeller blades snapped, rendering the motive power unavailable. Every yard of canvas the vessel carried was spread, but as there was an absence of wind the steamer made no headway. After considerable thought, Captain Ewer transformed the Ardenrigh into a side-wheel steamer. Openings for a wooden shaft, improvised with hoisting spars, were formed by drilling holes in the vessel's iron hull, just above her forward decks. Paddles of heavy planks were fastened upon each end of the rudely-made shaft. The donkey-engine and winch were utilised to supply the power, and, with the aid of bands and cogwheels, the paddles revolved. The ship yielded, and proceeded on her course at the rate of one knot and a half an hour. Supplied with her strange propelling gear, the steamer passed Hatteras, and reached Hampton Roads, Va., where she anchored.

DEPUTATION.

OFFENSIVE AND NOXIOUS TRADES.

On Friday morning a deputation, consisting of Mr. John See, M.L.A., the Mayor of Randwick (Mr. George Denning), Mr. S. H. Pearce, J.P., Mr. Joseph Graham, J.P. (Hon. Treasurer of the Randwick Asylum), and Mr. Joseph Coulter, waited upon the Colonial Secretary for the purpose of carrying out resolutions adopted at a public meeting held in Randwick a short time ago, protesting against the recommendation made by the Royal Commission upon offensive and noxious trades for the removal of such trades from Botany to Long Bay, within the borough of Randwick.

Mr. SEE introduced the deputation, and informed the Colonial Secretary that several other gentlemen, including the Mayors of Waverley and Paddington, and the members for the electorate, would have been in attendance, had it not been for the very short notice received. He stated that the whole of the population of the eastern suburbs, and also that of the city, were deeply interested in the matter, inasmuch as their health would be very much imperilled should the recommendation of the commission be carried into effect. He could not understand why such a recommendation could have emanated from gentlemen whose duties required a totally different result. The borough of Randwick was, he believed, the largest in the colony, and the number of its inhabitants was daily increasing, and as Long Bay is within the borough, and only a short distance from Sydney, very serious results would accrue from the establishment of the nuisances referred to. He referred briefly to many places more fitted for the carrying on of such trades, and urged upon the Government not to countenance any proposal for their establishment in or near Sydney.

Mr. PEARCE stated that in the Borough of Randwick there were about 4000 acres of Government land, and 3000 acres of church and school lands, which were at present worth £500 per acre, and Randwick was established as a municipality for the purpose of preventing its residents from being subject to such nuisances as those proposed to be established by the Royal Commission. Long Bay was in close proximity to the sanatorium, and was a part of the borough, which is now being thickly populated, and in the course of a few years many houses will be erected in the vicinity of the very place where it is proposed to carry on one of the most offensive and dangerous undertakings that could be thought of. Much offence had been given to the residents of Randwick during their operations at Botany, arising from the blowing of the southerly winds, and as such has been the case, what might they expect if they were carried into another municipality nearer home. He suggested for consideration by the Government, lands beyond George's River or in the Hawkesbury district, near the projected railway line, where these trades could be carried on with the least possible objection; and on behalf of the Randwick municipality, he respectfully, but solemnly, protested against the introduction into the borough of any such nuisance.

Mr. GRAHAM referred to the dangerous effect the carrying out of the recommendation of the commission would have upon the health of the residents of Randwick and adjoining localities, and instanced the excellent health enjoyed by the inmates of the Randwick Asylum as evidence of the excellent sanitary situation of the borough. He supplemented the observations of the preceding speakers in so far as a suitable site for the carrying on of such trades was concerned by drawing the attention of the Minister to a large tract of country beyond Pittwater. He regarded such worthy of inspection, and as the intended Newcastle railway could be utilised by those engaged in such occupations, nothing, he thought, was better adapted than that locality for the work.

Mr. STUART said that the report of the Royal Commission had not yet received the consideration of the Government, but when it should, he would see that the representations of the deputation would receive every attention.

POLICE.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

Mr. Clarke, S.M., presided on the Bench in the Charge Court on Saturday morning.

A number of cases of drunkenness were dealt with.

Michael M'Gruggin was charged with having stolen a box of tea, valued at £1, the property of the Commissioner of Railways. The accused was a drayman, and, it appeared, removed the tea on Friday from a truck, and put it on his dray. A person in the employment of the Railway Department saw him, followed him, and gave him into custody. He pleaded guilty to the charge. He was sentenced to be imprisoned for three months with hard labour.

W. Cardwell, on a charge of having been drunk on the railway premises, was fined 10s., or in default, imprisonment for two days; and on a charge of having wilfully broken a widow, the property of the Government, was fined 20s, or, in default, imprisonment for 21 days.

John Murphy, on a charge of having been drunk on the railway premises, was fined 10s., or, in default, imprisonment for two days, and on a charge of having used obscene language on the railway premises, was fined £3; or, in default, imprisonment for one month; and also on a charge of having taken his seat without having paid his fare, was fined £2; or, in default, imprisonment for seven days.

Kate Sheehan, on a charge of having no visible lawful means of support, was sentenced to be imprisoned for three months, and on a charge of having used obscene language was fined £5, or, in default, imprisonment for three months.

Patrick Keogh, on a charge of having offended against decency, was fined 10s., or, in default, imprisonment for 14 days. John Sharp, on a similar charge, was fined 20s., or, in default, imprisonment for seven days; and Alexander Campbell, also on a similar charge, was fined a like amount.

W. Peter Williams, on a charge of having deserted his illegitimate child, consented to pay 7s. 6d. per week to its support for a period of 12 months.

WATER POLICE COURT.

Kate Maher was convicted of a charge of vagrancy, and she was sent to gaol for one month. Sarah Woolford, on a similar charge, was ordered to gaol for three months.

Elizabeth Sly was ordered to forfeit the sum of £4, on two charges, the one of drunkenness and the other of having made use of obscene language in a public place, in default to undergo imprisonment for nine weeks.

George Stephenson was charged with having stolen the sum of £24, a bank cheque for £2, also two gold watches, a gold cross, a diamond ring, a dress ring, valued in all at £56, the property of Bridget Walker, proprietress of the Naval Brigade Hotel. On Friday the prisoner was committed for trial on a charge of having stolen some similar property from the same hotel. The evidence given in the present case was to the effect that on the 1st instant the prisoner, who was lodging at the hotel in question, was observed by the daughter of the prosecutrix to descend the staircase in the house. She detected something suspicious in his manner, and after he had left the house, she proceeded upstairs in order to ascertain if possible what he had been doing. On entering her mother's room she discovered that the property abovementioned was missing, and that a draw, in which portion of it was kept, was broken open. The prisoner was arrested on the charge by Sergeant Higgans after he had been committed in the former case. He was ordered to take his trial on the charge.

MAGISTERIAL INQUIRY.

An inquiry was held by Mr. W. T. Pinhey, J.P., at the Coroner's-chambers, on Saturday morning, on the body of a man named William Stewart, who committed suicide in Hyde Park on Friday by cutting his throat with a penknife. Louisa Stewart deposed that the deceased, who was her husband, was 37 years of age, and a native of Windsor, New South Wales; about three months ago he was an inmate of the Reception House at Darlinghurst; before that time he had been drinking heavily, and latterly he had been troubled in mind from losses in connection with his property; she received no indication that he intended to commit suicide. Constables Burrowes and Flynn gave evidence to the effect that on Friday morning they found the deceased near one of the enclosures in Hyde Park; he was bleeding profusely from a wound in the throat, and had a white-handled penknife with blood-stains upon it, in his right hand. Dr. Muskett, house surgeon at the Sydney Hospital, gave evidence to the effect that he examined the deceased on his admission to the hospital, and found that his windpipe was severed; air was escaping through the aperture, and he was unable to articulate; deceased subsequently died from hemorrhage from the wound in his throat. Mr. Pinhey found that death resulted from hemorrhage consequent upon a self-inflicted wound in the throat.

LOUISE MICHEL.

(From the Spectator.)

The sentence passed upon the Parisian lecturer, Louise Michel, for inciting the people to plunder bakers' shops, calls attention once more to that curious puzzle, the difference in the development of the passion of pity in England and on the Continent. The passion certainly exists here, as witness, for a single illustration, Mr. Plimsoll. Apart altogether from the multitudes of religious men and women who devote themselves to good works, there must be hundreds of persons in our midst who, without strong religious convictions, occasionally with very strong agnostic convictions, devote themselves, their lives, and their fortunes to the poor, out of sheer compassion. They have nothing to gain, not even reputation; but they work on steadily for years. They realise the sufferings of the poor so completely that they cannot rest unless they are battling strenuously with some evil, poverty, or disease, or ignorance, or intemperance, for their sake. They very often feel the pressure of such evils so painfully that idleness seems to them wickedness, the enjoyment of wealth a cruelty, and any departure from the law of abstinence in drinking, and even, though rarely, in eating, an immorality. We have known them abstain from carpets, lest they should forget what bare floors meant. Such men, and more women, often grow heated in the endless contest, lose sight in the proportion of things, and begin to regard cool judgment as evidence of callousness. They dream and brood until the impossible becomes easy to their minds. We have often been startled to hear persons whose whole lives were an honour to Christianity, and who possessed for all purposes of charity a true faculty of organisation, gravely defend proposals to which Parliament would scarcely give a hearing, proposals involving sometimes plunder, sometimes the abrogation of parental rights, sometimes the extinction of liberty absolutely essential to the national character. We have heard it gravely suggested that a five-shilling income-tax should be devoted to the poor, that the people should be rehoused by the confiscation of all legacies above £10,000, that all children should be taken from their parents to bring up "properly," and that marriage should be prohibited to all who do not receive at least £1 per week. The total prohibition of the sale of liquor is one of their commonplaces, and so is the compulsory despatch of babies to the crèche. But those who suggest such things, furious as they often are, and full of anger with classes and individuals, are rarely or never cruel. They do not wish to injure anybody. It has been our lot to listen to most kinds of English philanthropists, when most thoroughly in earnest; but, except once in regard to slavery and once in regard to vivisection, we never remember to have heard cruelty advocated, and never acquired an idea of the speaker having any secret sympathy with riot or insurrection. The pity seemed to extend to all classes, and a proposal to "card" the Duke of Westminster would have excited as much horror as did the condition of any labouring family in a London slum, or the oppression of any agricultural labourer. On the continent it is not so. There exists there in almost every country a class of philanthropists in whom a passion of pity for the "dim, common populations," for their sufferings, for their toil, for their want of food, seems to overpower not only the judgment, but even the moral sense. Sometimes wealthy, often cultivated, they become filled with hatred against those who, as they think, oppose their reforms, till they would confiscate all the property of the rich, banish all priests, and kill out all who would defend laws for the protection of either. Like Louise Michael, they do not object to dynamite or assassination, if all other means fail, and suspect those who do object of a secret half-heartedness in their horror of human suffering. There is no reason to doubt the evidence given by M. Rochefort as to Louise's devotion to the wretched women whom she found on board ship or in New Caledonia. He was not in a rhetorical mood, and his evidence is quite of a piece with all that has ever been recorded of her life,—with her devotion to her mother, her toil to give to the poor, her anxious and faithful attendance upon the wretched. She is by the testimony of her quartier a sister of mercy, without uniform or vow. Yet the Judges who hear these things hear her also justify the plunder of bakers' shops, receive evidence showing that she threatens fire and sword at the next social uprising, and deem her from her past history as a Communist a dangerous revolutionary character, who would, were the needful circumstances to occur, order a great massacre. They are as right as M. Rochefort. She is, in fact, a woman in whom the passion of pity has transformed her blood to gall, who hates oppressors, real or fancied, more than she loves the oppressed, and who has forgotten to consider the morality of means, if only she may arrive rapidly at benevolent ends. An English newspaper sneers at her reluctance to hear M. Rochefort give testimony to her virtues, as savouring of mock-modesty, but it is most probable that the reluctance was real, though it had nothing to do with modesty at all. Louise was simply impatient, as she said, of such a fact as her pity for the poor being brought forward as an argument in her favour. It was, to her mind, a necessary fact of her life, with no relation to the charge, and she might as well have been defended by a plea that she had dark or light hair. She despised such pleas, maintaining not that she was benevolent—which was to her a detail of no moment—but that it was positively right, if people were hungry, to incite them to take bread out of bakers' shops. She would not take it for herself, but she would incite them, that being, as she holds, a right thing to do. She would, in fact, levy war for the poor, and if the rich perished in the war, that was their fault for being rich. The mind revolts at a sentence such as was passed on Louise Michel—of six years' imprisonment, and ten more years' surveillance—as a monstrous cruelty, her offence, at most, being that of a ringleader in a trumpery bread riot, which in England would have been punished with three months', or at most six months' imprisonment. Yet what were the Judges to do? What sentence, except a lengthened imprisonment, could they inflict on a woman who avowed anarchial designs, and who they felt certain would, on the day of her release, incite the people again? The true remedy would be a kindly reclusion until the culprit had become more reasonable, but the Judges could not inflict it, and they availed themselves therefore of Louise Michel's position as a relapsed convict to confine her for the longest possible term. The only effect is to discredit justice, and to make new horrors possible in revenge; but the legislators have not yet founded a political Gheel, a city specially reserved for the kindly guardianship of all who are politically mad.

PROTECTION AND POLITICAL REFORM LEAGUE.

The Protection and Political Reform League held its usual meeting at the Temperance Hall, on Thursday evening last, vice-president William Richardson in the chair. Five additional members of the League were enrolled. It was announced that a Protection League was being formed in Port Adelaide on similar lines to that of New South Wales. A letter from Mr. H. S. S. Bond, recommending the advocacy of an ad valorem duty of 10 per cent. on all imports and exports, was received. Samples of some excellent paper were handed round for inspection as the manufacture of this colony. The case of Messrs. West and Perdriau, engineers, of Balmain, was discussed; after which it was proposed, seconded, and carried,—"That the League recommend those gentlemen to proceed on the lines of getting a bill passed by Parliament altering the Act under which their manufacturing establishment has been assailed, and under which all other similar establishments can be attacked, and this League pledges them all the support in its power." The League accounts were submitted and passed as correct. The meeting then adjourned to next Thursday, when the annual election of officers will take place. After the meeting the secretary received a telegram from the vice-president, Mr. J. B. Douglass (the League delegate), informing the League that he had held meetings at Mittagong and Joads Creek, where he had formed branches, and 36 members had been enrolled.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Perhaps you will allow me a short space to refer to your leading article in this morning's paper on the subject of "stearine." I still maintain that the 133rd section was not an enactment ultra vires of our Parliament, but only a direction as to the manner in which a certain law of its own creation, and within its powers, was to be carried into effect.

Your argument that no duty can be collected upon any "substance" which is not an article of the tariff, notwithstanding the fact that the uses and character of such substance may be in essential particulars identical with the dutiable article, would be an excellent rule for importers, but I am afraid it would turn out a bad one for the Treasurer. Tariff evasions are difficult enough, in all conscience, to deal with, but this hard and fast line of construction would go far to render the action of the Legislature, in imposing duties for revenue purposes, altogether inoperative and unavailing.

You ask me for instances of the tariff being extended to articles not therein specified. I will content myself by mentioning a few. Curry powder is nowhere mentioned nominatim in the tariff, but spices are, and these have been held to include curry powder. Again paints, though neither specified nor described, are entered as liable to a duty of two shillings per hundredweight, and yet between 29 and 30 substances beginning with such as black dross, black Berlin, black Brunswick, dryers, &c., &c., and ending with ultra marine, and vermilion, are all held to be ratable under the generic term of paints. Chocolate is entered as an article subject to a duty of 3d. per lb.; but instead of being limited to the refreshing morning cup, the duty has been extended to chocolate drops and chocolate sticks, and theobromine has been rated under the cocoa duty. Solid glucose has been held to come within the description of raw sugar, and glucose syrup to mean molasses. I could go on almost ad infinitum; but the examples already given are sufficient.

I beg to dissent with great deference from your definition of stearine as being the "raw material" of candles, and maintain in contradistinction to this, that tallow, the hard fat of commerce, is the true raw material of all candles; and if you will turn to the Tariff Act of 1871, 34 Victoria, No. 42, page 692 of the 1st volume of Oliver's Collection of Statutes—the Act which imposes the candle duty—you will there find that tallow, per se, is exempt from duty by being placed upon the free list. I therefore submit it is only reasonable to suppose that if the Legislature had intended stearine to go free it would have been found in the free list also.

OUTRAGES IN THE SOUTH SEAS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Having just received by post a copy of your paper of the 27th, calling my attention to the letter of your Fiji correspondent, in which he says, "Mr. Paton accuses the Fiji missionaries of palliating the atrocities of the labour traffic, because of the wealth they acquire from it," permit me to inform all concerned that I have never done so; but Mr. William Fellingham Parr, a Fiji planter, did so in my name, which the following facts of the case will show, as given in the Melbourne Argus:—

The Argus having, in a leader, commented on a pamphlet in defence and praise of the labour traffic to Fiji, while its evils were ignored, I was led to reply in the Argus of April 30, which has ever since led a host of Queensland and Fiji planters, collectors, and agents to write in all our newspapers, but chiefly in the Argus, in the defence and praise of this traffic, and in condemnation of me, to some of whom I have from time to time replied, as time permitted, dealing not with its evils in Queensland and Fiji, but with them as I have seen them on the islands since its commencement.

Mr. Parr, replying in the Argus of the 7th May said, "Mr. Paton is perfectly ignorant of the subject about which he professes such knowledge. I invite him to write to our missionaries there—the Revs. F. Langham, Lorimer Fison, A. J. Webb, &c.—and ask their opinions about our recruiting and system of labour," &c., as if to show that their testimony would be the reverse of mine. In the Argus of the 8th May I replied, saying there was nothing in his of the 7th worthy of a reply, as he had not met one of my charges, but tried to throw dust in the eyes of the readers by referring them to the Fiji missionaries, who live hundreds of miles away from where the Polynesians are recruited for the Fiji sugar plantations, and they can know nothing of the way the natives are recruited on our islands, except by hearsay through the collectors, kidnappers, and planters, and they, like Mr. Parr, have their living and wealth by it, and try to make the least possible of its evils. Mr. Parr took no notice of the Rev. T. Neilson's letter written corroborative of what I had said." In the Argus of the 30th May, Mr. Parr replied saying, "Mr. Paton says the Fiji missionaries have their living and wealth by the labour traffic, and make as little of its evils as possible," whereas I had said the collectors and planters had their living and wealth by it, &c., as in my reply in the Argus. A Mr. Wilson, also a Fiji planter, now came to Mr. Parr's help, and by using his account of what I had said and wrote in condemnation of me, of the missionaries, and of the Free Church of Scotland, &c. Replying to him in the Argus of the 11th June, I said: "Mr. Parr, like a subtle lawyer with a bad and losing case, put words into my mouth and tried to condemn me by them, seeing he found nothing in my letter to suit his purpose. Mr. Parr made my letter say the Fiji missionaries had their living and wealth by the labour traffic, whereas I said the planters and other interested parties had theirs. I am certain the testimony of those missionaries, if given from real knowledge of this traffic, could not differ from mine or that of any except the interested parties who are blinded by the wealth they get from it. Theirs is just the old story, 'Great is Diana'—our Diana—for by it we have our wealth, and whosoever opposes it or exposes its evils must be put down, and our worship of it, with the income we derive from it, must go on and continue. I hope no Fiji missionary has any connection with this traffic so steeped in blood and suffering on the islands where the labourers are recruited, and fraught with such evils as even exist in it in Queensland and Fiji."

After thus in the Argus having so often pointed out Mr. Parr's mistake, I expected him, like a gentleman of honour, to acknowledge in the Argus that he had misunderstood me, but he has not done so. . . . . Indeed, after all this, instead of confessing his wrong, he sent me by post a private letter, in four closely written pages of a large post sheet of paper, of insolence and personal abuse, quite in the style of the leader in the Fiji Times. Of course I did not reply to either, considering them below my notice. But I am sorry Mr. Parr has grieved the Fiji missionaries by so dragging their names before the public, and so making me the innocent cause of offence. Certainly if a spark of manly honour or justice remains in his breast he ought now to apologise to the missionaries and to all he has so offended by his misstatement of the truth.

Your correspondent says:—"The Presbyterian clergy urge that they have spent many thousand pounds on their mission, and are prepared to spend many thousands more, and this may be an excellent reason for their wishing to stop the traffic, but it can have no force whatever to the business men and the politician." We have not urged this as a reason for suppressing the labour traffic, but we have urged it as a reason for annexation, seeing that by our Presbyterian mission we have now expended £150,000 christianising, civilising, and doing all the good that has been done on the New Hebrides by British money, and now we have a great and expensive organisation working for the elevation of those islanders, many of whom again and again have petitioned our beloved Queen for annexation to Great Britain, while all fear and hate the French, who have not expended one farthing for the good of our islanders, while by the labour traffic they have done them much injury, and have no just claim whatever to them. Yet I fear through British procrastination, notwithstanding the unitedly expressed desire of our Australasian colonies, France will annex them soon. We have pleaded, and now plead, for the suppression of this traffic on the higher grounds of humanity and justice, and to prevent crimes that are surely a sad stain on our Australian honour. As I have often said, I do not pity any man who can defend or plead for the continuance of this traffic, now so steeped in blood and crime on the recruiting grounds.

I heartily agree with your correspondent when he says: "In my opinion the effects of the labour traffic on the islands is a good reason for annexation." Again, "My decided opinion is that the emigration of the islanders is not beneficial to themselves; that all the talk about the civilising effect of the plantation work is mere buncum. The mere contact of the savage with civilisation is not beneficial to him; on the contrary, unless he be very carefully protected, that contact does him a world of harm. And there can be no disputing the fact that the removal of the islanders in large numbers is injurious to their community." And I add that on the islands the taking away of children from parents and parents from children, wives from husbands and husbands from wives, leaving those behind unprovided for and unprotected, causes much misery and suffering, upsets all moral order, breaks up all family relations, and is ruinous to the islanders from every aspect. Even the firearms and ammunition with which the traffic has filled the islands are ruinous, to the islanders, as they cause many more lives to be taken in their internal wars, and are used in their atrocities upon the traffickers who have given them. The returned labourers are often so weak and exhausted on their return that they die soon after, and if the returned are not landed on their own land on their return, they are often murdered and feasted on by those among whom they are landed, and the property they brought back is divided among their murderers. I do not suppose there is much difference in the traffic, if any, as conducted by Fiji and Queensland; but a shadow of greater mercy and justice appears to be on Queensland's side, as their Labour Act allows them 4d. a day, while Fiji only gives them 2d. for their hard work on the plantations. Even if in both colonies they were treated ever so well on the plantations, the injustice and island evils of the traffic would force me to plead for its complete suppression by Great Britain, and plead with all in the interest of humanity to help in this by every means possible. No doubt my letters will cause, as usual, a host of replies from interested parties, and if I do not answer them it must not be set down to inability; for before you get this I will be again started on an inland six weeks' tour to raise funds, if possible, soon to be able to give a missionary to every island in this group, to tell them of Jesus and his salvation.

Yours, &c., JOHN G. PATON.

MR. H. C. RUSSELL ON EVAPORATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In the interesting paper read before the Royal Society last night by Mr. Russell on "Irrigation," that gentleman showed by experiments conducted at Albury that the evaporation during the warm months of the year amounted to about four inches per month, and not more than one or two inches during the other portion of the year, or about 25 inches per annum.

To arrive at a definite result as to the amount of evaporation is at once to determine whether it is possible to carry out works of irrigation in the interior of the colony. If the evaporation is not very many times greater than the rainfall, the conservation of water on a large scale becomes possible; but if it is out of all proportion to the rainfall, then it becomes impossible to store water on a scale of any magnitude.

Lieutenant Maury in his "Physical Geography of the Sea" shows that the evaporation from the trade-wind region of the ocean amounts to 15 feet per annum. Captain Armitt, R.N., in his "Light as a Motive Power," disputes this estimate, and alleges that the evaporation from those regions is 16 feet. These are two standard authorities on this important subject, and both of them account, by a long train of reasoning on the rainfall of the whole world, for the full amount of evaporation they state.

Now, first, salt water is less easily evaporated than fresh; second, salt water on the ocean is less easily evaporated by the atmosphere, which is already surcharged with humidity than it would be if it were in comparatively small quantities in the interior of a country like Australia where the atmosphere has been drained of its moisture, and therefore thirsty and absorbent; third, still less easily then will salt water on the ocean be evaporated than fresh water on the land.

If there are 15 or 16 feet of oceanic evaporation there must be a very great deal more than that on the land, where foliage and herbage present the fresh water to the more direct action of the winds—and from some calculations I have made, independent of the estimates of Maury and Armitt, I have no hesitation in stating that the evaporation from our interior plains cannot be less than from 20 to 30 feet per annum.

The Narran lake and river, for instance, present an excellent guage from which to calculate the evaporation. The area of this lake is about 36,000 acres, and when full it is from 12 to 15 feet deep in the centre. The river occasionally stops running, and it is found that after the river ceases to flow the lake retains its water for nearly twelve months. This at once gives an evaporation of 12 to 15 feet to start with. There are about 15 inches of rainfall there, and it may fairly be assumed that the rainfall of six or eight times the area of the lake finds its way into it, say only six times—and this will give us 15 inches on the lake itself, and six times 15 inches, or 90 inches, for drainage from surrounding country during the year, making a total of 105 inches, or 8 feet 9 inches which added to the depth of the lake, will give the total amount of evaporation at from 20 feet 9 inches to 23 feet 9 inches.

Now, assuming—and I am pretty near the mark in the assumption—that the Narran is 150 feet wide and 6 feet deep, and flows at the rate of one mile per hour: if the evaporation is 24 feet per annum, and the river flows as above stated, it could only flow for three months, when the whole stream would be absorbed by evaporation. To make it more clear, in three months, at one mile per hour, the water would travel 2200 miles, and if the river flowed through a bed 150 feet wide and 6 feet deep, kept continuously full at the top end, evaporation would cause the water to gradually diminish in depth from the start till it would fall altogether at a point 2200 miles from the starting point.

Now, suppose, just below the starting point we widen the bed to 300 feet, the water will then only be 3 feet deep in the widest part, and it would flow through the 300-feet width with only half the distance, or 1100 miles before it was evaporated. Now suppose we again increase this width to 100 times its dimensions, or 30,000 feet, which for convenience we will reduce to roughly 450 chains, then the water which filled the 300 feet width to three feet would only fill this increased width to a depth of 100th part of three feet, and it would therefore only flow 100th part of 1100 miles (or 11 miles) before evaporation would have seized it all. But 11 miles by 450 chains gives an area of 39,600 acres; and if the Narran, flowing 150 feet wide and six feet deep, at the rate of one mile per hour, ran into a lake of 39,600 acres superficial area it would never fill it—supposing the evaporation to be 24 feet per annum—because evaporation would exactly counterbalance the inflow of water.

As a matter of fact, however, it flows into a lake of only 36,000 acres, and sometimes does fill it; but only on two occasions has it caused it to overflow its banks—once in 1864, and once in 1881.

Now, if my estimate of evaporation at 24 feet is seriously in error, the calculated area of equilibrium required for the Narran lake would not come so close to the actual area of that lake as it does. Mr. Russell's estimate is 25 inches, or, roughly, a twelfth-part of my own. If Mr. Russell is right, the area of the Narran lake ought to be 12 times what it is, or 432,000 acres.

It will be seen that in arriving at my estimate, I have adopted two separate courses of reasoning—the first, a direct one calculated from the actual depth of the lake, and the ascertained rainfall, which brings out the result at from 20 feet 9 inches to 23 feet 9 inches. The second, an inverse calculation from the known depth, width, and rate of flow of the Narran, and this proves that the rate of evaporation can be no other than that brought out in the first method.

Such a guage as the Narran presents is as far superior to the small experiments being made at Albury, for determining the rate of evaporation, as the revolutions of the planetary bodies are superior to experiments with weights and scales for the purpose of calculating the power of gravitation, and for the sake of settling the question of the possibility of water conservation on our western country, the Government could not better expend a small sum of money than in conducting a series of careful observations of the actual amount of water which flows through the Narran into the lake. Such observations are as necessary to the settlement of this question as observations on the transit of Venus were to the accurate determination of the sun's distance from the earth.

BISHOPSCOURT, WAVERLEY.

HOW TO GET A HOUSE OF YOUR OWN.

Suppose you are now paying £80 a year rent, in eleven years you will have paid your landlord more than the value of the house, and not a brick of it will belong to you.

If you have only £80 YOU NEED NOT PAY RENT ANY LONGER. You can buy land at Bishopscourt to the value of say £200, and build a nice house upon it for say £600 more, making altogether £800.

The Company will advance you £720, repayable by weekly instalments of £1 19s 7d, which in 11 years will amount to ... £1132 11 9

Deduct from this what you would pay as rent for same period ... 880 0 0

Leaving ... £252 11 9

So that for £252 11s 9d, or less than 10s per week for 11 years, you would become the owner of a property which to day is worth £800; but who can tell what its value will be 11 years hence? In all probability double.

Remember, the Australian Mutual Investment and Building Company, Limited, is the most liberal of Building Societies.

NO FINES, NO ENTRANCE FEES, and NO MORTGAGE FEES.

INTEREST IS CHARGED ONLY UPON THE BALANCE OWING FROM TIME TO TIME.

Loans may be repaid at any time, with interest to date of paying off only.

Already several first-class villas are being erected upon the Estate.
